KNIGHTLY HOSTS.

Assembling of the Templars for Their Triennial Conclave.

The City Invaded by the Defenders of the Cross.

Thousands of Visitors Brought In by Rail and River.

St. Louis Extends a Hearty Welcome to Her Plumed and Sworded Guests.

Preparations for the Visitors' Reception—Arrivals by Steamer and Train To-Day—At the Union Depot—On the River—The Headquarters—Decorations—On 'Change—The Illuminations—To-Morrow's Grand Parade—The Arkansas Battalion—The Grand Encampment—Yesterday's Arrivals—Sacred Concert at Music Hall—The Philadelphians—Grand Charity Concert.

THE Knights Templars who arrived on yesterday's early trains had a wet welcome. But with the arrival of the California battalion at noon the skies cleared and the sun shone forth a royal greeting. To-day the prospects are that the weather for the Conclave will be magnificent. This is the one thing necessary to assure the success of the Triennial season. The streets are clean, the buildings on the principal thoroughfares magnificently decorated, the shop windows are filled with knightly trophies, the programme of entertainment is as elaborate and the arrangements as complete as the most hopeful had expected. To-day the Sir Knights of the city and State are busy welcoming the visitors and seeing that they are well cared for. The headquarters of the different commanderies are open and every possible attraction has been provided. To-night the streets will be brilliantly illuminated for the first time during the carnival season. To-morrow morning at 9 o'clock the Conclave season will open with a grand parade in which 20,000 Knights Templars will participate.

The Philadelphians.

Jos. S. Wright, President St. Louis Club, Philadelphia.

The St. Louis Club of Philadelphia arrived last night direct from Las Vegas and took up headquarters at the Southern. This club is composed of Knights Templars representing the several commanderies stationed at Philadelphia, and was organized to attend the Triennial Conclave.

Previous to reporting at St. Louis the club has made an extended trip, visiting most of the points of interest in Colorado and New Mexico. The club travels in special Pullman sleeping coaches furnished by the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, and will be at the service of the pilgrims the entire trip. The Centralia Silver Cornet Band met the pilgrims upon their arrival in St. Louis, and will remain with them while in that city.

The club left Philadelphia at 11:30 Saturday, September 4, and has visited Chicago, Denver, Manitou, Cimarron, Pueblo, Santa Fe and Las Vegas. It takes its departure Wednesday afternoon, stopping over Thursday at Cincinnati and reaching home Friday next.

The officers of the club are Jos. S. Wright, President; M. F. Beuerman, Secretary; F. Seibrandt, Treasurer; Theo. B. Stull, Chairman Advisory Board, and Geo. W. Kendrick, Jr., and Franklin A. Smith, Transportation Committee.

On Time.

The first arrivals yesterday were twenty-five of the Holy Cross Commandery No. 10 of Clinton, Io., which came in a special car on the C., B. & Q. with their ladies. They arrived at 7:05 a. m.

The Clinton Knights will use their sleeper Etna as headquarters. Sixty Sir Knights of Mary Commandery No. 36 of Philadelphia in special coaches came in at 8:50 a. m. New Mexico sent 16 Knights, four from Las Vegas, four from Albuquerque and the others from Silver City, Deming and Socorro. The California commanderies, 800 strong, arrived shortly after noon in three special trains. They were received with their ladies by details from St. Louis, Aldemar, Ascalon and Ivanhoe Commanderies and taken to their headquarters in the thirty-five omnibuses provided for them. Grand Master Withers, who has made a three weeks' trip from Hong Kong, China, was among the number.

At 4 p. m. the Detroit Commandery arrived by special train. They were accompanied by a Detroit band. Four Sir Knights of No. 15, El Paso, came in with their ladies at half-past 5 o'clock p. m. At 5:45 thirty-five Sir Knights of Temple Commandery, No. 58, of Fayette, Mo., came in on the Missouri Pacific. At 6 a. m. an advance party of two arrived from the Godfrey de Bouillon Commandery of Mattoon, Ill., and a few minutes later thirty-six Sir Knights of the Tancred, No. 33, Commandery of Moberly, Mo., with twenty-two of the Ladies' Circle, came in over the Wabash! The Tancred members were accompanied by a band. A few members of the Walpurgis Commandery, Clinton, Mo., arrived late on the Missouri Pacific.

The Maryland Commanderies with a total of 150 Sir Knights from Baltimore No. 2, Crusade No. 5, Maryland No. 1, Monumental No. 3, Beauseant No. 5, and a party from Washington arrived at 9 p. m. With them were their ladies and a party of friends, making 500 altogether. A number of the Portsmouth (O.) Mounted Commandery No. 13, came later with their ladies. Maryville No. 19 and Cynthiana No. 16 of Kentucky were represented by their Knights and their ladies. They brought a special band. Henderson (Ky.) No. 8 arrived about 8:30 p. m. Danville, Ill., sent fifty Sir Knights with ladies, and fifty men will arrive to-day. Palestine Commandery of Paris, Ill., with forty men; Anderson Commandery No. 32, with thirty Sir Knights; a delegation from Mattoon and another from Evansville, Ind., came in the evening. The Evansville party will be followed by their commandery, eighty strong, which will come in on the steamer Hudson to-day. Fifty-two Knights, with seventeen ladies, from Reading, Pa., No. 42; ninety Sir Knights and three ladies from Terre Haute No. 16; Malta No. 31 of Ottumwa, with sixty-five men and as many ladies, accompanied by a brass band; a delegation from Henderson (Ky.) Commandery, Temple Commandery No. 4 of Des Moines, Io., with eighty Knights, ladies and brass band, and Kanawha Commandery No. 4, with the Grand Commandery of West Virginia, thirty-two strong, arrived between 8 and 9 o'clock p. m.

THE ILLUMINATIONS.

The Streets to Be Gorgeously Lighted Up To-Night for Templars.

The first illumination of the season will be given to-night. The men, 100 in number, will begin lighting the gas jets at 6 o'clock. About an hour's time will be consumed in getting them lighted, when the illumination will be kept up as lyng as the crowds remain down-town to see it. A second illumination will take place to-morrow night and another Thursday evening. If the Flambeau Club parade Wednesday night no illumination will take place, but if they do not parade the lamps will be lighted on that night also. With the exception of the ruby globes surmounting the pyramids, those on Fifth street are white. On Fourth, however, and the cross streets a variety of colors are introduced.

F. Seibrandt, Treasurer St. Louis Club, Philadelphia.

Since last year the line of illumination has been greatly extended, continuing on Fourth street north to Franklin avenue, from Washington avenue, a distance of three blocks, extended out Franklin avenue to Fourteenth street with gas illumination ten blocks, and from Fourteenth to Seventeenth street three blocks superbly lighted by twenty electric lights of great power and brilliancy.

Chas. C. Hutchinson, P. G. C. Mass. and R. I.

Locust street will be illuminated from Fourth street to the Exposition building, a distance of nine blocks. These are the additions to the illumination of last year, being in extent a distance of twenty-five blocks, adding much to the general effect.

The line of illumination will be along the east and west side of Fourth street, from the north side of Franklin avenue to the south side of Clark avenue, a distance of 6,650 feet; along the east and west sides of Broadway, from the south side of Franklin avenue to the south side of Clark avenue, a distance of 6,540 feet; along Franklin avenue on north and south sides from Fourth street to Seventeenth street, a distance of 4,700 feet; along north and south sides of Washington avenue, from Fourth street to Fourteenth street, a distance of 4,000 feet; along north and south sides of Locust street, from Fourth to Thirteenth street, a distance of 3,500 feet; along north and south sides of Olive street, from Fourth street to Fourteenth street, distance 4,000 feet—grand total of seven miles of illuminated streets.

PLAN OF ILLUMINATION.

on Fourth street, beginning at the intersection of each curb line, standards composed of two-inch gas pipe are erected, each standard spaced eleven feet apart by nine feet high to a segment of an arch composed of one-inch gas-pipe, with a rise of eighteen inches in centre. Each section thus made is fitted with five globes; each alternate standard is surmounted by a tree composed of nineteen burners; also over the middle of the sidewalk are trees placed, having artistically designed arches, twenty-eight feet high, spanning the street at the intersection of Franklin avenue, Washington avenue, Locust street, Olive street, Market and Clark avenue, each having 300 burners fitted with variegated colored globes—the arch at Olive street being a grand design of ponderous size, having the Veiled Prophet's Comet Star, and surmounted by a circle with the word "WELCOME," and flanked on each side by the initials "V. P." The Star, V. P. and Welcome alone contain 2,000 gas jets, placed close together so as to burn freely and continuously, and to form the Star and letters by a flame of gas.

James M. Cole, Grand Commander Minnesota, 1885.

The plan of illuminating Broadway is somewhat different to that of Fourth street, in not having the nineteen burner gas trees over the middle of the sidewalk; it has twelve large squared arches, one placed in the center of each block, and each containing 300 burners, fitted with globes of variegated colors.

Theo B. Stubb, Chairman St. Louis Club, Philadelphia

Franklin avenue will be illuminated with "nineteen-burner pyramids" on lamp posts, fitted with globes of variegated colors; with five beautiful arches, 300 burners each, spanning the avenue at intervals between Fourth and Fourteenth streets. Beyond Fourteenth street to Seventeenth street the avenue will be beautifully lighted with twenty electric lights.

The plan of illuminating Locust street is similar to Franklin avenue and Washington avenue, with "nineteen-burner pyramids," with variegated colored globes, and five arches of 300 burners each, spanning the street at intervals.

The plan of illuminating Washington avenue, from Fourth street to Fourteenth street, will be by placing "nineteen burner pyramids" on the lamp posts, fitted with globes of variegated colors; also having beautifully designed arches spanning the street at the intersection of Fourth, Sixth, Eighth, Tenth, Eleventh, Twelfth and Fourteenth streets, each having over 300 burners fitted with globes of variegated colors; and the arch at Eleventh street being a grand triple arch, spanning the street and sidewalk on both sides, erected by the Laclede Gaslight Company.

Thos. Sewell, P. G. C., Nebraska.

The plan of illuminating Olive street is similar to that of Washington avenue, having pyramids on lamp posts from Fourth to Fourteenth streets, the west end of the Exposition Building; it also has grand arches spanning the street at the intersection of Fourth, Sixth, Tenth, Twelfth and Fourteenth streets, each having over three hundred burners, with variegated globes.

The total number of burners fitted with variegated globes amount to 58,000, the lineal distance illuminated being about 36,000 feet, and will consume 185,000 cubic feet per hour, or 950,000 cubic feet per night, or over 6,000,000 cubic feet for the week, of the value of about $14,000.

THE SACRED CONCERT.

Services at Exposition Hall—Thousands Unable to Gain Admission.

The Conclave devotional exercises held yesterday in Exposition Music Hall attracted the largest crowd ever put into and collected around a place of religious exercise or entertainment. The vast hall was filled, and thousands more than the size of the audience were turned away unable to secure admission. The parquet was reserved for the Knights and their families while the rest of the vast theater was open to the public. On the stage, 500 ladies and gentlemen from the various singing societies of the city, formed a powerful chorus under the direction of Prof. Egmont. Froelich. When the curtain rang up the audience broke into applause at the sight of the chorus.

Postlewaite's Band, under Louis Meyer, gave the overture from "Athalie." The very eminent Grand Prelate, Sir Geo. C. Betts, attired in the vestments of the High Church, conducted the services to which there were the usual responses by the Sir Knights.

The Hallelujah chorus was excellently rendered, and the audience, forgetful of the religious character of the exercises, applauded. "He is Watching Over Israel," from "Elijah," was also well rendered. Miss Laeis sang Mendelssohn's "Rest in the Lord," and Mrs. Fannie Flesh Morse sang the Cujus Animam from the "Stabat Mater" in a way that elicited applause. Mr. Dierkes' tenor solo was well rendered, as was also the quartette by Mrs. Morse, Miss Laeis, Messrs. Dierkes and Cornelius. Miss Clara Stubblefield was the accompanist, and added much to the excellence of the programme. Liberati's cornet solo was as only Liberati can do.

The address of Rev. John D. Vincil was without notes and was most attentively listened to. The discourse was a sermon, with the purposes and teachings of Freemasonry as its subject.

The occasion had nothing in it to mar the pleasure of the proceedings. The greatest credit is due to Chairman Parson and his assistants and to Sir Knight Jesse Cornelius. The ushers, under Sir Knight John A. Sloan, preserved remarkable order. They were: Sir Knight John H. McIntyre of Commandery No. 1; Frank R. Tate, No. 18; John W. Campbell, No. 1; John W. Elwell, No. 1; W. F. Dieterich, No. 1; G. V. R. Meclin, No. 18; A. J. Field, No. 18; R. B. Stewart, No. 18; J. E. Lincoln, No. 18; O. Andrews, No. 18; F. R. Peters, No. 18; R. G. Butler, No. 25 (Belleville); Perry F. Smith, No. 18; Charles Leonori, No. 1, and W. R. Stubblefield, No. 16.

ON THE RIVER.

Arrival of the Steamers Dacotah and Pittsburg—Others Expected.

The tug Joseph Gartsides left the foot of Vine street about 8 o'clock this morning to meet the steamers Dacotah and Pittsburg, the former from the Missouri River as far up as Lexington and the latter from St. Paul. The tug was in charge of Right Eminent Sir William J. Terrell, Past Grand Commander of Missouri. At the Water-works the Parker went to the bank to await the coming of the boats. The Dacotah had on board the Lexington Commandery and the Jefferson City Commandery marshaled under Marshall Commandery, No. 56, footing up a total of seventy swords, besides the families of the Knights. These commanderies are under Sir Knight Jas. A. Gordon, E. C. of No. 36. On the steamer Pittsburg came Damascus Commandery No. 1 of St. Paul, Minn., under Sir Knight W. H. Sanborn, E. C. Sol G. Wagner, Past Grand Commander of Missouri, with a delegation of Knights, was at the river headquarters, Jenkins & Sass' office, to receive the boys. At precisely 9:15 a. m. the Dacotah's whistle blew for landing. A booming of guns was heard from the deck of the Gartside, where Sir Knight Archie Gordon was acting as gunner. Almost immediately after the Dacotah hove in sight, the steamer Pittsburg loomed up. She was decorated beautifully. Flags were flying, bands playing and guns booming. The boats were landed in good shape and the crowds were taken care of by Hunter, Ben Jenkins, John W. Elwell, R. J. Humber Archie Gordon and H.C. Meyer, all of St. Louis Commandery Old Guard. An escort of Tancred Commandery of Moberly went to the Pittsburg to escort the Damascus Commandery down to the Dacotah, where all the commanderies fell into line and were marched to the river headquarters.

The steamer Hudson will arrive to-night with the La Vallett Commandery of Paducah, and the Arkansas City will be in to-day with the Memphis Commandery. The Calhoun is looked for with the Peoria Commandery, and the Hugh De Payen Commandery of Little Rock are coming on the City of New Orleans. The City of Cairo is bringing up the Cairo commanderies. The St. Paul is coming with a number of individual Knights, and the Gem City from Keokuk will be along to-morrow with a number. With the exception of the Gem City these boats will be the quarters of those who came in on them, and Jenkins & Sass' office has fifteen cots for the accommodation of the visitors. Sir Knight Sol Wagoner, Past Grand Commander of the State of Missouri, who has kept pretty close watch of the visitors, says he is positive that the number by all means of conveyance will not fall much short of 30,000.

AT UNION DEPOT.

Arrival of Visiting Commanderies this Morning—Their Reception.

The reception of the Knights at the Union Depot was under the direction of Adjutant-General and Chief of Staff Robt. McCulloch, who formed a line of Knights from the south end of the platform where nearly all the trains came in to the ticket office, where the line was moved to the right to the carriage-stand at the foot of Eleventh street. The remaining Knights were composed of details from the local commanderies, who were placed so promptly that there was always a line of plumes awaiting the visitors. As soon as a train load was disembarked the Knights in uniform formed alongside their train and headed by their band, if they had one, passed between the St. Louis Knights who filed on either side of the way and saluted as the strangers passed. Behind the uniformed members came the Knights in civilian dress, and the ladies and children, nearly all of the latter wearing the badges of the commandery to which they belonged.

Chas. W. Batchelor, P. G. C. Pennsylvania.

W. C. Williston, P. G. C. Minnesota.

R. Allen Hall, P. G. C., Michigan.

At 8 o'clock the public began to crowd into the depot, and by 7 the passageways were choked with humanity. The scene was a very thrilling one, the engines puffing, the bands playing and the commanders calling their orders, all at the same time. There was no accident of any kind, and the various delegations were moved off and out of the way smoothly to make room for the next wave of visitors.

Bermoday Commandery (mounted) of Grand Rapids, which arrived about noon, their horses having arrived here Friday. They took the prize for drilling at a previous conclave and are regarded as one of the finest mounted commanderies in the United States. H. J. Hastings is their Eminent Commander. They have forty-six men.

With the Virginia commanderies came the Washington (D. C.) Knights, amounting to over fifty men, who in turn acted as escort of the Virginia escort. The Virginia Commandery was officered by F. A. Reed, Grand Commander, and R. T. Craighill, Grand Captain General. In honor of their relation to the Grand Master they were accorded more than the usual welcome. Chief of Staff, Adj.-Gen. McCulloch, who, by the way, was adjutant of Gen. Withers, now Grand Master, during the war, prepared a special escort of reception, enlisting Baltimore, No. 2, with the Frederick City Band. They filed past the Virginians and gave the special salute of honor, the Washington escort falling in and the doubly escorted Richmond Commandery coming last in their traveling dress, their train being too late to permit the changing to uniforms. They were attended to their headquarters at the St. James Hotel, where the lines were again formed and the salute given as the Grand Master's escort passed under the banners and bunting. Within the hotel a very pleasant surprise awaited them. Mr. J. W. Lambert of St. Louis, who was raised in the George Washington Lodge of Alexandria, Va., in honor of his Virginia friends had placed in their room a beautiful triangle of choice roses with the twelve apostles represented by unusually beautiful roses. Around the triangle was worked in lovely immortelles a sentiment of affection. This was about the first thing that greeted their eyes when they entered, but their pleasant surprise was increased when Mr. Lambert presented each member of the commandery with a bound lithograph souvenir of St. Louis. These and other remembrances of friends quite over came the Knights who had not expected such immediate greetings.

Another Commandery that arrived on this train was the mounted Templars of Jackson, Mich., who occupied two cars and had about forty men. The three Commanderies marched away from the depot together.

AT THE HOTELS.

The Crowds, How They Are Handled, Fed and Lodged.

The hotels of the city were this morning the scenes of such amiable confusion, such uniformed life and sociability as those hostleries seldom know. In the midst of all the rush and worry there was good temper everywhere. The crowds were characteristically American in their submission to the inevitable. They accepted cots in windy corridors in place of rooms and comfortable beds without a murmur. Occasionally the clerks were enlivened by a kicker, and the clerks, full of the misery of their situation, looked pitifully at the guest, hardly venturing a protest to his kick. The principal hotels worked both watches of clerks to keep things even, and had increased their waiters and kitchen help double or treble the usual force. All adopted a system of meal tickets procured at the office to avoid the losses occasioned at such times of crowds in the dining-rooms. The guests were worked in relays. That is, at meal times as many as could properly be accommodated in the dining-room were seated, and then the doors were closed. When the first installment was fed, they were ushered out and the next relay entered. In this manner meals were served continuously from 6 o'clock this morning all through the day. The arrivals were continuous and seemed to have have no relation to the hours of train arrivals. A delegation arrived at the depot at one hour and possibly four hours later would show up at a hotel. There might be half their number missing, and after great difficulty the whippers-in of the delegation would secure the straggelers. Most of the hotels adopted an expedient that saved much confusion. They had contracts with commanderies, made months ago, to accommodate so many people. These people were to arrive this morning. Lists of them were furnished, so that this morning the clerks registered the people as having arrived and assigned them to rooms. Harvey Willard of the Southern knew a trick worth two of that. When the contracts for commanderies were made he knew just how he could place the people, drew up a scheme of the hotel and assigned the knights to rooms. That was over a month ago, and when the arrivals began to register they were shown to their rooms without the slightest confusion.

The arrivals up to noon to-day were as follows:

SOUTHERN HOTEL.

California Commandery No. 1, 102 persons, San Francisco, Cal.

Detroit Commandery No. 1, 98 persons, Detroit, Mich.

St. Louis Club of Philadelphia, 53 persons.

Maysville, Ky., Band, 23 persons.

Maysville Commandery, Maysville, Ky., 21 persons.

Zion Commandery, Minneapolis, 60 persons.

Leavenworth Commandery, Leavenworth, Kan., 40 persons.

The Southern was not decorated at all by its proprietors, and rather gained than lost by the absence of bunting in simplicity. But advance guards of commanderies had hung out over Broadway the banners of Apollo Commandery Chicago, St. Albans, No. 47, Philadelphia; Corinthian Chasseurs, Philadelphia, and the Philadelphia Commandery. The Californians who are quartered in great numbers at this hotel hung out a few Knight Templar flags on either side the gateway. On the parlor floor there is a profuse display of banners and decoration that really has little method in it except to get lots of bright colors displayed on all available space. Over the east corridor leading off the parlor promenade rich silk flags were draped. On the opposite side of the promenade the banners of St. Albans, Philadelphia and Leavenworth Commanderies leaned against the wall. They are magnificent testimonials of the ladies' interest in the order. The Californians are lavish in entertainment, a quality peculiar to the Western slope, but there is less ostentation about it than their Eastern brothers display.

Apollo and St. Bernard Commanderies of Chicago will arrive at this hotel to-night.

PLANTERS' HOUSE.

San Jose Commandery, No. 1, San Jose, Cal., C. W. Breyfogle, Eminent Commander; 30 persons.

Maryland Commandery, No. 1, Baltimore, Md.; 51 persons.

Beauseant Commandery, No. 8, Baltimore, Md.—A. E. Booth, Eminent Commander; E. G. Knight, General; Thos. J. Shryock, Captain-General; Grand Master Masons of Maryland—Clif. Wood, Senior Warden; Wm. H. Shryock, Junior Warden; John H. Griffin, Standard Bearer; Chas. Clark, Sword Bearer; Wm. F. Courtney, Warder; L. H. Uhrig, Guard; 40 Templars.

Baltimore Commandery, Baltimore, Md., No. 2, twenty-nine persons.

Monumental Commandery No. 3, Baltimore, Md., nine persons

Crusade Commandery No. 5, Baltimore, Md., eight persons.

Boston—Five knights.

The banner of the Grand Commandery of Ohio is swinging on the Chestnut street side of this hotel, and emblem flags of the Templar are displayed at every window.

EVERETT HOUSE.

St. John's Commandery, No. 21, Centerville, Ia., 94 persons.

St. Joe Commandery, St. Joe, Mo., 76 persons.

Peoria Commandery, Beardstown, Ill., 8 persons.

Chicago Commandery, No. 19, Chicago, Ill., 5 persons.

The small office of this hotel was crowded all the morning with uniformed Knights, the Western Missouri, Kansas and Nebraska delegations making it a meeting place. The restaurant has been closed as such, and is being operated entirely as an adjunct to the dining-room of the hotel. Flags, small in size, are profusely spread over the exterior of the hotel and not spared inside.

HOTEL ST. LOUIS.

Nebraska Grand Commandery—E. F. Warren, Grand Commander; Charles F. Needham, Deputy Grand Commander; John J. Wemple, General; Edward S. Deedley, Captain General; James S. France, Grand Treasurer; Wm. R. Bowen, Grand Recorder; Henry V. Blake, Grand Prelate.

Mt. Nebo Commandery No. 11, Hastings, Neb., 32 persons.

Mt. Olive, No. 2, Nebraska City, 9 persons.

Mt. Lebanon, No. 3, Omaha, 36 persons.

Mt. Hebron, No. 12, Kearney, Neb., 47 persons.

Mt. Tabor Commandery, No. 9, Fremont, Neb., 28 persons.

Mt. Hermon Commandery, No. 7, Beatrice, Neb., 45 persons.

Mt. Zion Commandery, No. 5, Plattsmouth, Neb., 10 persons.

Mt. Moriah Commandery, No. 4, Lincoln, Neb., 34 persons.

While the above commanderies were registered at this hotel (which was formerly Hurst's, at Fourth and Locust), they had not arrived at noon, but telegrams from the train announced their approach. This hotel will be the Nebraska headquarters, and will doubtless be the scene of some contention over matters that have arisen in the order in Nebraska relative to the power of the governing board.

HOTEL BARNUM.

St. Bernard Commandery, Independence, Kan., seventy-seven persons.

Aurora Commandery of Aurora, Ill., forty persons.

Elwood, Springfield, Mo., seventy-five persons (will arrive at 5 p. m.)

Lebanon Commandery No. 10, Lebanon, Mo., sixty-two persons.

Some appropriate displays of emblem flags decorate the exterior of this place. Notwithstanding its small size the hotel is accomodating an extraordinarily large number of people, and was one of the few hotels not entirely filled after the eight o'clock arrivals this morning.

LINDELL HOTEL.

Columbia Commandery, District of Columbia, 6 persons.

St. Bernard, Independence, Kan., 6 persons.

Wisconsin Grand Commandery, G. H. Benzenberg, N. C. Gillin, J. W. Ladin.

New York State Battalion, 200 persons.

The Lindell has been crowded all week, and with the arrivals of yesterday and to-day was so entirely filled that there hardly seemed space to turn about. Cots will be placed in all available parts of the building, billiard-room, reading-room and property-rooms. All sample-rooms have been given up to cots, and the drummer is absolutely without where to lay his goods.

HOTEL BARNUM.

(To arrive this evening.)

De Molay Commandery, Reading, Pa., 30 persons.

Galesburg, Ill., 100 persons.

Lincoln, Ill., 75 persons.

HOTEL HUNT.

Parsifal Commandery, Paris, Mo., 45 persons.

Greenfield, Mo., 20 persons.

The Hunt is decorated with very small flags, the stars and stripes alternating with Knight Templar flags at every window in the house. The small size of the flags and the alternation of the black and white with the red, white and blue make the decoration peculiarly effective.

HURST'S HOTEL.

Malta Commandery, Ottumwa, Ia., 51 persons.

Cox Light Infantry Band, Pella, Ia., 25 persons.

Temple Commandery, No. 4, Des Moines, Ia., 37 persons.

Tompkins' Great Western Band, with Temple Commandery, 17 persons.

Grand Commandery of Iowa; Wm. A. McGrew, wife and daughter, A. R. Dewey, John C. Parish, Theo. Schreuer, Geo. B. Vansaun, Chas. Holendale.

Cincinnati No. 3 will arrive to-night.

Coleman Commandery No. 7, Troy, New Carlisle and Pleasant Hill, 18 persons.

Hanselman, No. 16, Cincinnati, will arrive to-night.

Oriental Commandery, Kansas City, Mo., 75 persons.

The bar at Hursts is the only decorated feature of the hotel, but there are as many people stowed away between its walls as could conveniently be gotten there. As the list above shows there is little room in the place left, and by to-night there will be none.

ST. JAMES.

Anderson Commandery, Anderson, Ind. 25 persons.

Reading Commandery, Reading, Pa., 55 persons.

Damascus Commandery, Keokuk, Ia., 25 persons.

Richmond Commandery, Richmond, Va., 75 persons.

Detroit No. 1, Detroit, Mich., 50 persons.

Washington Commandery, Washington, D. C., 75 persons.

Athelston Commandery, Danville, Ill., 125 persons.

Palestine Commandery, Paris, Ill., 70 persons.

St. John's Commandery, Philadelphia, Pa., 75 persons.

St. Bernard Commandery No. 16, East Saginaw, Mich., 85 persons.

Sacramento Commandery, Sacramento, Cal., 45 persons.

The Grand Commandery of Virginia will make its headquarters at this hotel. Portsmouth (Va.) Commandery will arrive there to-night. The usual flag embellishments are in the windows, and banners of St. John's Commandery of Philadelphia and the Reading (Pa.) Commandery fly over Broadway. The hotel has had a fair share of the patronage during the past week, and has been nearly crowded all the time, and now it is overflowing.

MOSER'S HOTEL.

Newton, Kan., eight persons.

McPherson, Kan., six persons.

Ely Commandery, No. 22, Kirksville, Mo., seventy-two persons.

HOTEL HILTON.

Darius Commandery, Minneapolis, Minn., fifty persons.

A REVOLUTIONARY OUTBREAK BY SPANISH TROOPS IN MADRID.

The Uprising Ill-Planned and Ill-Managed—A Panic in the Spanish Capital—The Revolutionists Repulsed—Several Officers on Both Sides Killed—The Riot at Belfast—A Desperate Battle at Noon To-Day—Foreign News.

MADRID, September 20.—A revolution was attempted last evening by a number of the Spanish troops quartered in this city. The uprising was ill-planned and ill-managed and practically amounted to little more than a mutiny. The trouble was inaugurated by a regiment of infantry quartered in the Gil Blas Barracks. The soldiers revolted, broke down the partition wall that separated them from the quarters occupied by the cavalry, and intermingled with the men of the two cavalry regiments, a number of whom joined in the revolution. The officers of all three regiments did all in their power to dissuade the men from revolting, but 300 soldiers, after beating a number of officers and wounding three, deserted the barracks and marched in two bodies through the town. One body went to the Prado, the principal park and promenade of Madrid. Two thousand troops were quartered in the Prado at the time, and the revolutionists expected to be joined by them. The other body went hurrahing through the center of Madrid, calling on the people to join in the revolution, crying:

"LIVE THE REPUBLIC," and making all kinds of threats against the monarchy. At this time the theaters and other places of amusement were crowded. The populace were taken by surprise. In most of the public places the people flocked out in a panic. In all, the entertainments were abruptly terminated. The streets were soon filled with people, nearly all of whom were terror stricken because of exaggerated ideas of what was transpiring. The insurgents attempted among their first exploits to secure possession of the arsenals, docks and barracks, which they attacked with open fire, but all these places were well and successfully defended and the rebels were repulsed. Finally their reverses drawing them together, the insurgents attacked and got possession of the Southern railway. By this time the authorities had taken in the situation and were fully prepared to master it. The loyal troops were marched to the railway and they completely dislodged the revolutionists, who dispersed into the country, Gen. Pavia pursuing. During the fighting in the city one of the officers leading the insurgents was shot and killed. The rebels shot Gen. Velarde for refusing to join them. They also mortally wounded Count Mirasol, and killed a colonel of artillery. Martial law was proclaimed throughout the city as soon as the condition of affairs was clearly perceived by the Government. The emute was a complete surprise to Madrid. Quiet was soon restored after the revolutionists were driven from the Southern railway.

A number of the insurgents were taken prisoners. This morning there is no appearance of a revolution or even of disorder. When the insurgents fled from town forty of them compelled the station-master to place at their disposal a special train with which they made their flight to Alcala de Henares. Government troops were soon in pursuit in another special train.

HOW THE REVOLUTION STARTED.

Noon—Additional particulars of last night's revolt show that the insurgents also shouted: "Long live the republic, the army and Spain." A large number of civilians joined their ranks. When the authorities summoned the military to put down the insurrection, the rebels made a stand for a while against the loyal troops and it was in the first brush between the opposing forces that Gen. Velarde and the artillery Colonel were killed. When the revolutionists realized that the other troops were making no response to their appeal, they abandoned the fight in town and scampered for the country, most of them in the direction of Alcala de Henares—a walled city in New Castile—and but seventeen miles from Madrid. Many of the rebels gave up the fight long before the general retreat of their comrades, and made their escape in the darkness. The authorities are making a great many arrests for complicity in the revolution, and a large proportion of the prisoners are officers.

THE LEADER.

It is learned to-day that the revolution was led by Brig.-Gen. Villacapa. He escaped on the special train which left the city on the Southern Railway. Loyal troops are scouring the suburbs of Madrid in search of fugitive rebels. Telegrams from all the Provinces show the public order remains undisturbed. The ministers, who happened to be all absent from the city yesterday, have been summoned to return immediately. It has been learned that the revolutionists; who started for Alcala de Henares, becoming convinced that the loyalists would stop and probably capture them, stopped their special train en route, sent it back to Madrid and fled across the country. The streets of the city are alive with crowds of people eagerly discussing the occurrence of last night.

A GOVERNMENT TRICK.

DUBLIN, September 20.—The Freeman's Journal declares that the Government inspired the arrest of the young Irishman who was taken into custody Saturday for hooting at the Marquis of Londonderry during his state entry into the city, with the purpose of provoking the peace, in the hope that they would retaliate and furnish the authorities with excuses for coercion.

A RESPECTFUL RECEPTION.

The Irish Times says: "Despite the efforts to excite ill-feeling on the occasion of the new Viceroy's arrival at Dublin Castle, the Marquis of Londonderry met with a respectful and even cordial reception."

RIOTING AT BELFAST.

BELFAST, September 20, 1:50 p. m.—All was quiet in the city this morning. At noon, however, a large body of the Queen's Island shipyards workmen, all Orangemen, marched ostentatiously through the streets on their way to and from dinner, as if to provoke a fight. At Carrick Hill they were attacked with volleys of stones, and a desperate fight ensued, which is still in progress. Many men on both sides have been wounded. The police are outnumbered and powerless. Reinforcements are hurrying to the locality.

This has been done with full knowledge on the part of the interior department, but no measures have been taken to check it. The St. Mary's Lake district, south of the forty-ninth parallel in Minnesota, is the one which suffered most from these depredations. Millions of feet of the choicest lumber has been cut and floated down the Belly River to Leeth Bridge, where it has been sawed up and then sent into different parts of Manitoba and the Northwest Territory. ## HOW THEY GOT THERE.

Two Men Who Made a Fortune With Common Sense as Capital.

The new store of Penny & Gentles, opened this morning at their old stand, corner Franklin avenue and Broadway, is as substantial an evidence of what industry, unflagging energy and judicious business policy, logically and practically carried out, can accomplish. Could a shopper whose memory could revert to the little establishment located in 1873 at No. 912 Franklin avenue be dropped suddenly into the great rushing and spacious quarters it now occupies, she would hardly believe that it had grown in the interim to the mammoth depot it now is. The doubt would be greatly increased were she told the flower in full bloom on the southwest corner of Broadway and Franklin avenue owes all its beauty and perfume to the incessant care and never-failing vigilance of the two men whose names are ineradicably interwoven with its petals. Long did Penny & Gentles work their way round by round up the ladder of mercantile progress, and the latest expression of that progess is one of which they may well be proud. Their great success they attribute to their plain, straightforward policy, their practical, everyday ideas, and their satisfaction with a slow, steady and sure building up of their financial structure. Their present quarters are a marvel of convenience. Their store has three broad floors on the first of which are to be found silks, dress goods, kid gloves, hosiery, velvets, etc.; on the second is the millinery department and on the third the reserve stock. At the opening this morning the large floors were thronged with shoppers and purchasers, who between times listened to the strains of delightful music or partook of a generous spread of eatables. The millinery department had but an informal opening to-day, and the regular opening will take place on Tuesday and Wednesday next.

Foran's Renomination.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH.

WASHINGTON, D. C., September 20.—Congressman Martin Foran of the Cleveland (O.) District is in the city. It is a pretty well settled assumption that he will accept the nomination to be tendered him by the Democrats, and for the third time will carry a strong Republican District. The Republican Convention Saturday nominated by a trifling majority ex-Congressman Amos Townsend, and by that act alienated the almost predominating labor element of the district and also the Law and Order people who were strenuously supporting C. C. Burnett. This split will secure Mr. Foran's re-election. One amusing feature of Mr. Foran's contest will be the fact that his novel, published during the summer, has convinced many people that instead of being a red-handed anarchist he is even a more conservative labor agitator than John J. O'Neill It is thought by some that in the event of Mr. Foran's re-election and the House is Democratic, he will succeed Mr. O'Neill as chairman of the Labor Committee.

The Charity Concert.

The arrangements for the Charity Concert of Wednesday are all completed. The stands are in place, and every arrangement made for making the Templar guests comfortable. W. W. Hopper, Chairman of the Music Committee, received this morning a report from another band of twenty-seven pieces. This makes over two thousand musicians actually reported. Mr. Hopper estimates the actual number who will participate at 2,300. Over one hundred and fifty reserved seat tickets were sold this morning.

The Fair Association have notified members of the Fair Ground Club that a special club-members' gate will be opened on Grand avenue on concert day and during the Fair. No one but a club member will be allowed to drive through the ground on charity day.

It's a Way New Yorkers Have.

From the Denver News.

One of the most generous and commendable acts that has recently been recorded of a wealthy gentleman traveling across the country in his own special cars was that of Jesse Seligman of New York. When the train reached the washout which occurred on the Rio Grande road near Castle Rock it was brought to a standstill, and there held all the afternoon and way into the night. There was no place to feed and no place where food could be obtained. Banker Seligman and his party were well provided for, having their own sleeping car, their own dining cars, and a good store of provisions, which had been laid in at Denver. The passengers on the regular train, however, were not so fortunate, and as there were many ladies the situation began to look rather blue. Pullman Conductor A. J. Ricketts, taking in the situation, went back to the banker's party and told them that there were a number of ladies on the cars who were in need of food and drink.

It did not take the banker long to answer, and his answer was: "Go and set your tables and I will provide the food."

And he did, and he did it handsomely. He set his cooks and servants to work and cooked up a bountiful supply of everything he had in store. His provisions were brought out in such quality and quantity as to surprise all, and the passengers feasted on the banker's meal. But he did not stop here. After feeding all the passengers he turned to the railroad laborers, who had been working manfully to repair the damages done by the storm. To these men he sent his servants with large servers piled heaping full with the good things he had in store, and every laborer was waited upon by the banker's servants and served with a good lunch. The train afterwards was compelled to return to Denver and await the repairs of the road, and with it came the testimony of all on board of the good heart and splendid generosity of the banker.

Fishing in the Sea of Azof.

From the London Times.

It is known, says the Moscow Gazette, that the fisheries of the Sea of Azof are in no respect inferior to, but in many ways rather surpass, those of the Caspian. Although the average take of the former is only 4,000,000 poods weight of fish as compared with the 10,000,000 poods extracted from the latter, yet, if we consider the relative dimensions of the two seas, it will be seen that the sea of Azof is a hundredfold richer of production than the larger body of water. Notwithstanding its great industrial importance, the laws affecting fishing have not been as yet brought into any kind of order. The regulations at present in force on the shores of the Azof and at the mouth of the Don date from the year 1828, and afford no indication as to the season when fishing is permissible or not. In theory, the dwellings on the coast possess exclusive and equal rights of fishing, while in reality it is the Cossacks of the Don who enjoy almost a monopoly of it, not only in the Lower Don, which flows through their lands, but also along the coast forming part of the district of Rostoff. The need for regularizing the fishing laws in the interest of all the inhabitants of the seacoast was recognized by the authorities of the Province of the Don in 1869, but no practical result followed. At present a project of reorganization has been elaborated, and will in the coming autumn be submitted to a commission. In former days the chief wealth of the surrounding country was derived from its fish, which found a market not only in Russia, but in far distant countries. Rational measures which would increase the supply would also lower the prices, which have been tending upward for a long time, and are at present excessive.

A Pertinent Question.

From the Commercial Gazette.

Assistant Secretary Fairchild decides that Mormons arriving in New York may land, provided it is shown that they are not paupers. But if our Government recognizes Mormonism as a crime, is there no way in which foreigners of this stripe may be kept out of this country? It is questionable whether a benighted Mormon is a more desirable accession to our population than a heathen Chinaman.

A SHARP RALLY.

The Market Opens Weak, but Buying by Shorts Causes an Advance.

By telegraph from Jones, McCormick & Kennett, Chicago, to the POST-DISPATCH.

CHICAGO, September 20, 1 P. M.—Wheat acted weak and heavy this morning at opening, but turned on some good buying orders, mostly to cover shorts. The local crowd got bullish and worked on that side until they got long. On the announcement of the visible supply, they hurried to sell out, which precipitated a break almost to the opening prices, and then on a quieter market, with fair buying orders at hand, the market made a sharp recovery. The close was steady at 74 1/2c for October. To-days' increase in the visible was large and the weeks' clearances at seaboard rather smaller than for some time. The increase in the supply arises largely from the heavy movement up in the Northwest and but for which the increase would be small or unimportant as compared with to-day's figures. Receipts here for to-morrow are estimated at 190 cars, which is small for Tuesday, and shows that the movement to Chicago is easing off some. The bulls have been rather more aggressive to-day than usual, and acted with considerable confidence at times. There was some shipping demand here, but nothing of special importance.

Corn was quite active and at spells quite strong. Some good lines of shorts were taken in, which constituted the principal buying. The shipping demand was about as usual, but freight room was not particularly plenty.

Provisions were active and the market became uneasy on the purchases of pork made by one of the houses and on this a rapid advance was made, the smaller shorts buying in their stuff under the fear that another upward rush was about to be made.

St. Louis Markets.

FORENOON SESSION, CLOSING 1 P. M.

The Merchants' Exchange will not open for business until 11 o'clock to-morrow forenoon, to enable the members to view the Knights Templar parade, and will stand adjourned all the following day.—The large receipts of wheat at Duluth are said to be owing to the fact, that the Minneapolis millers are not buying wheat and piling it up at interior points as they did last year. They have been making no effort to attract wheat to Minneapolis, but let it go to Duluth with the hope of breaking that market, and this is now being done.——The new English wheat is said to be not only deficient in quantity, but is greatly inferior in quality. The condition is more or less soft, rendering it unfit for immediate use, except when used with a large proportion of old or foreign wheat.——The export of wheat from San Francisco is steadily increasing, and for the first nine days of this month amounted to 1,041,075 bu.——The latest Estimate of the Russian grain crop this year, as compared with an average yield and as compared with the crop of 1885, is as follows:

| | 1886. | 1865. |
|---|---|---|
| Winter wheat | 40 | 90 |
| Spring wheat | 75 | 35 |
| Rye | 80 | 75 |
| Oats | 100 | 60 |
| Barley | 100 | 60 |

Only a few of the principal ports in the United Kingdom make a return of stocks of wheat and flour on September 1. Liverpool, Fleetwood, Bristol, Hull and Glasgow held wheat and flour on that date equivalent to 8,141,259 bu of wheat—a reduction from the same date of last year of 3,347,217 bu. As these places usually represent about one-half of the total stocks carried in the United Kingdom, it is quite probable that the present stocks are very much less than last year.—Both Jack Cudaby and Norman Ream wire Ed Dutcher that the bulge in wheat was caused by the local crowd overselling themselves and trying to cover, and that the market would again break down.—Rolla Billingsley, who has been in Iowa and Nebraska for several days, says that fully 75 per cent of the corn crop of those States is safe from frost, the balance being too green yet. The Iowa crop is about 60 per cent of an average.—J. B. M. Kehlor says he can do nothing with Europe now, and so dull are their markets he is not able even to work any flour for export, though up to this time he had been selling flour to the other side right along.—A telegram to R. Cleary & Co. said: "A large non-speculative shipping house East wires us undoubtedly better feeling abroad, and if seaboard tonnage could be had wheat would move out freely."—Estimated car lots in Chicago for to-morrow are 190 wheat, 610 corn, 140 oats.—Holmes of Minneapolis wires: "Late cables report market declining, no buyers owing to heavy receipts, fine weather and wheat turning out better than expected. Holders appear to have lost all confidence."

Wheat—There was more excitement in the market of this morning than has been seen for some time past. The opening was sharply lower—3/8@1/2c off—a break in Chicago and other speculative centers, the dullness and weakness that were still quoted by the public cables, receipts of 882 cars at Duluth, and other influences more or less bearish causing the decline. Local traders, however, showed no intense hankering to sell, and the offerings were not near up to the demand. This came in the main from shorts, though there was also pretty good buying by parties who thought it was about time for a reaction. And they got it, for Chicago suddenly took one of its quick up-turns, the demand having become extra urgent, and amid considerable excitement, prices advanced rapidly until 3/4c higher. The announcement of 2,600,000 bu increase in the visible supply started the crowd to selling and weakened the market 3/8c, but it toned up again late and the close was firm at 1/8@1/4c above Saturday. October sold at 74 3/8c up to 75 1/8c, back to 74 3/4@7/8c, but closing up at 75 1/8c; November at 76 5/8c to 77 3/8c, off to 77c, closing at 77 1/4c; December at 78 1/2c to 79 3/8c, off to 79c and closing at 79 1/4c; January on first call at 81 1/8c; May at 87 5/8c to 88 3/8c, down to 88c, closing at 88 1/8c. Spot No. 2 red improved 1/8c and sold freely to speculators, but the other grades gained more in value. No. 2 red, 74 1/2@74 5/8c; No. 3 red, 70 7/8@71c; No. 4, 67 1/2c in St. L.; No. 2 Mediterranean, 73 1/4c bid regular, 73 1/2c for E. side; No. 3 do, 69 1/2c bid.

Corn was right strong and sold higher early in the day, the reaction in wheat and better advices from the outside markets improving the tone, demand and values, but trading was light and the market fell back, finally closing 1/8@1/4c above Saturday. October sold at 35 1/2c; November at 36 3/4c up to 37c and back to 36 3/4c; December at 36 1/4c; May at 42c. September offered at 35 1/2c, bid 35 1/4c. Spot grades were better in price and firm, but the demand was still small and only for light offerings the market would not have improved. Spot grades were in scant supply and firm, but with only a light demand. No. 2, 26c in St. L., 25 1/2c asked for U., 26c bid for M.; No. 3, 25c bid this side; No. 3 white, 26c bid for M.

HOGS—Trade was active and early sales to city butchers were at about steady prices. An easier feeling was developed later and trading was on a lower basis than last week, the general tendency being towards lower values. To butchers sales were at $4.75@5.10, packers paying $4.60@4.75, and one sale as high as $4.90. There was no demand from shippers, and other sales were to speculators in mixed hogs at $4.35@4.70.

THE thousands of Knights Templars now gathered in the city will learn something about the growth, importance and enterprising spirit of St. Louis.

THE solitary Democrat who has been elected to the next Vermont Senate will be in a good situation to learn the proper meaning of a Bourbon ascendency.

ST. LOUIS will entertain during this week a number of visitors equal in number to double the population of Kansas City. St. Louis is that kind of a city.

THE troublesome Indians of the Southwest should have been sent to Rhode Island where the large number of disfranchised and sympathetic Caucasians would have made them feel at home.

THE Globe-Democrat does well to quote the opinions of the POST-DISPATCH, but it does not do well to describe the POST-DISPATCH as "a Democratic organ." An organ is not independent and the POST-DISPATCH is nothing if not independent.

VISITORS to the city should bear in mind that the illuminations which have been prepared for their entertainment surpass any in America. It should be remembered, also, that these illuminations are a regular annual feature of the fall festivities.

THE brilliant enterprise of American journalism was illustrated last Saturday by some papers which put up bulletins announcing that GAUDAUR had won the international sculling race. Such mossback enterprise is amiable and well meaning, but not at all reliable.

THE continued upward tendency in the price of bar silver keeps the gold men as busy as bees with the work of explanation. The Wall street sharks seem to know a little about everything except silver. The same is true of the branch establishments of Wall street.

IN spite of the strain on our resources from the pressure of advertising we are ready to guarantee that all the news will be found in the paper to-day. There is a great deal of news in our supplement and we may add that there is a great deal of "mighty interesting reading" in our advertising columns.

THE Philadelphia Record says that the Maine people prefer their present style of Prohibition because under its beneficent workings they e[ndure th]eir Prohibition and their whisky too. [...] [Rep]ublican orators seem to have forgott[en ...] powerful argument that lies in easy reach, but they may yet utilize it if very sorely pressed.

THE CONCLAVE.

It is the wish and determination of the citizens of St. Louis to extend a hearty and cordial welcome to the vast concourse of Knights Templars now convened here in their Triennial Conclave.

St. Louis is pre-eminently the city of national conventions. This fact has been permanently fixed not only by the central geographical location of the place, but in a great measure by the traditional business enterprise and hospitable character of the people; while the size of the city offers accommodation for the greatest crowds that can be drawn together.

A Triennial Conclave of the Knights Templars is a national convention, memorable in importance and attractiveness. It comprises the representatives of the most famous mystic order on earth gathered into one place from all the parts of a vast nation. Such a meeting beautifully symbolizes the strong and holy ties of brotherhood that overcome all opposition in the name of kindness, love and charity, and hold together with indissoluble bonds the widely scattered members of an innumerable family. The Masonic orders are essentially Christian in aim and practice, which seek to exemplify and perpetuate the spirit and example of Christianity rather than its theological and dogmatic features. The Sir Knights are dedicated to the chivalry of benevolence and good deeds.

To the visiting Sir Knights St. Louis opens her homes and her hearts, and a generous emulation will animate our citizens in the work of receiving and entertaining the guests. The occasion is a memorable one and no effort should be spared to enhance the comfort of the visitors that they may enjoy themselves to the utmost while they sojourn in our midst and carry with them on leaving pleasant memories of St. Louis and her people.

HON. JOHN B. HALE, the present Democratic representative of the Second Missouri District in Congress, has announced himself an independent candidate for Congress against C. H. MANSUR, who was nominated by the Democratic Convention. HALE charges that MANSUR took advantage of his absence attending to his duties in Congress to fill the district with false stories about HALE's record as a Union soldier, and by this and other foul means captured the convention—all of which did not become known to HALE until after MANSUR was nominated over him. The question between them is, therefore, submitted to the voters of the District, the proper tribunal to hear and decide it. Such appeals to the people from party conventions must always be made at the peril of the appellant, with the odds against him and defeat almost certain if his case be not a good one; but they are the only check upon unfair electioneering and fraud where yellow dog majorities embolden candidates to employ unscrupulous methods of obtaining party nominations.

THE Courier-Journal publishes a thrilling account of Congressman MCCREERY'S narrow escape from death while crossing the Kentucky River at Boonesboro in a ferryboat. Just as the boat landed the Congressman tried to drive his buggy ashore, when the boat suddenly swung loose and man, horse and vehicle went overboard in deep water. "Are you hurt, Governor?" asked the ferryman, as he dragged the noble Kentuckian ashore, dripping from head to foot. "Oh, no," was the reply, "not a particle. I don't think a drop of water got into my mouth." "Thank God!" exclaimed the ferryman, as he extended the Congressman a black bottle. The typical Kentuckian does a great deal of unnecessary talking under ordinary circumstances, but he knows the value of keeping his mouth shut at a supreme crisis. It is the Kentucky belief that water in its wild and untamed state is a dangerous thing to fool with.

IN the famous and bloody mountain district of Kentucky which is represented in Congress by TAULBEE, the Democrats have renominated him on a platform demanding "all the offices" for Democrats and denouncing civil service reform and the civil service law as humbugs. The California Democrats have demanded a clean sweep in the offices not affected by the civil service law, but nobody except FLANAGIN of Texas and the wild mountaineers of Kentucky's "Bloody Tenth" has taken the extreme ground which Senator COCKRELL's Jefferson City organ occupies in declaring that "the party in power has a right to all the offices."

A CONTEMPORARY says that "the Repub-"lican party is sure of champions who will "ably defend its doctrines and vigilantly "look for opportunities to advance its "wishes and purposes." There can be no doubt of this as long as its truth is attested by such living examples as Mr. BLAINE, ex-Senator STEVE DORSEY and ex-Assistant Postmaster-General THOMAS J. BRADY. These shining examplars of Republican doctrine are now retired, like their party; but they hope to come to the front once more when the star of their political faith rises again.

THE rumored prospect of a Franco-German alliance is received with incredulity. It would be an unnatural combination with no principle of cohesion.

THE Powers are willing to grant Bulgaria a kind of independence that is not independent. The Bulgarians should go to farming and allow the Powers to run the government to suit themselves.

THE worst phase of that "little bit of smirch" on JIM BLAINE's record, referred to by Senator FRYE, is that it is still there.—[Houston Post.

No; the worst phase of the little smirch is that it will still be there in 1888.

THE Vermont Democrat and the Arkansas Republican should exchange compliments.

SOME good Republicans are ready to condemn BRADY for his talk about reviving dead issues.

THE flambeau mortars made enough noise to cause the old-time quartermasters to hunt their holes.

THE California Democrats show an unseemly eagerness in reaching for the top cracks in the public crib.

THE anti-saloon Republicans should have rehearsed more frequently before holding their trick-mule convention.

MR. CUTTING should now aid the State Department in creditably extricating itself from its correspondence with Mexico.

IT is presumed that the Northern settlers now swarming into Arkansas have not heard of the beastly Democratic majority.

No politician should build his hopes on the strength of his record without first assuring himself that it is the right sort of strength.

MURAT HALSTEAD says that BLAINE will yet sweep the country. If this means that the voters will again wipe up the ground with him, there may be some truth in it.

EDGAR L. WAKEMAN, formerly connected with the Current, is now sojourning in a Massachusetts gypsy camp; but MISS CLEVELAND is not dismayed by this fearful example of a man who tried to run a literary periodical in Chicago.

Is THIS MR. BRADY,
Who used to be shady—
Is this MR. BRADY with secrets to tell?

THE METROPOLITAN PRESS.

What the Editors of the New York Journals Are Saying This Morning.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH.

NEW YORK, September 20.—The WORLD says to-day: "True revenue reform consists in lightening the burden of tariff taxation upon the necessities of the people and the essentials of manufacturers without depriving American labor of the ability to compete successfully with foreign labor. If a 20-per cent tariff was sufficient for this purpose in 1861, a 46-per cent tariff is not necessary now."

THE SUN.

The Sun says: "The mugwumps want to run the Administration, and they want the offices as a means of running it, if for nothing else. That is very natural. It is the very essence of Democracy. But by the mugwumps on the outside it is called the spoils system."

THE TIMES.

The Times says: "As to Mr. Eaton, his services to the cause of reform are well known. That he made mistakes during his term as commissioner he would be the last one to deny. That he was guided by a zealous desire to strengthen and promote the reform and that much of his work was as effective as it was difficult is equally certain."

THE TRIBUNE.

The Tribune says: "The Maine election shows that nineteen-twentieths of the prohibition voters will not sacrifice their convictions on national issues, or put Democrats into power by wasting their own strength on a separate party ticket. The anti-saloon conference at Chicago shows that Republicans who sincerely desire temperance reform are uniting their efforts to secure practical results through the Republican party. Meanwhile, the broadening division between real Prohibitionists and assistant Democrats comes in Ohio to a practical manifestation through the defeat of prohibition in several towns by the votes of pretended Prohibitionists. These events teach a lesson which all concerned many profitably study."

THE PEOPLE'S FORUM.

Citizenship.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Will you please answer the following to settle a dispute?

Having been born in the United States, and having lived here continuously, now that I am 21 years of age is it necessary for me to take out naturalization papers to entitle me to citizenship, simply because my father, though living here for the past twenty-five years, has failed to do so, and is now, and has been since his arrival in this country, a British subject?

A READER.

St. Louis, September 18, 1886.

[The Fourteenth Amendment expressly declares that "all persons born or naturalized in the United States and subject to the jurisdiction thereof are citizens of the United States and of the States wherein they reside." In the case of Alexander McKay, born of British parentage at Fort George, Ore., it was held that his birth there did not make him a citizen, because Fort George was at the time of his birth under British jurisdiction. But, except in the case of children of Ambassadors, it has uniformly been held that every person born on American soil and subject to American jurisdiction is an American citizen, regardless of the father's allegiance. Before the Fourteenth Amendment was adopted the courts had held that the children of unnaturalized persons are citizens by birth if born and brought up under the actual jurisdiction of the United States.—EDITOR POST-DISPATCH.]

THE HEADQUARTERS.

Decorations and Arrangements for the Three-Year Event.

The decoration of Armory Hall was concluded yesterday. Everything is in readiness for the reception to be given by De Molay Commandery to-morrow night. The decorations are principally of banners decorated with Masonic designs in black and red. From the centre of the hall hang thirty strings of flags and banners which are swung to different points at the base of the domed roof. As many streamers of black and white cloth hang between them. From the pipe which extends around the hall about twenty feet from the walls and the same distance from the floor, depend the silken banners of the different California commanderies. The eastern end of the long hall is concealed by a huge painting representing an army of the Crusaders storming a citadel. The figures are life-size and the whole movement of the picture is very natural. On either side is draped an American flag

M. F. Beuerman, Secretary St. Louis Club, Philadelphia.

At the western end of the hall are erected three tents of snowy whiteness. The large tent in the center is fitted up as a parlor, with velvet-cushioned furniture, huge mirrors, etc. The side walls of the hall are concealed by small flags and shields bearing Masonic and Knight Templar devices. The whole is illuminated by a dozen arc lights.

Without, an electric lamp hangs over each entrance to the building while from the upper windows hang four strings of banners which are gathered together at the head of a flag-staff across the street.

ST. ALDEMAR.

St. Aldemar's headquarters on Olive street, opposite the Exposition, were thrown open to the visitors yesterday morning. The walk leading to the doorway was bordered with pots of growing plants, while flowers adorned the parlors and reception rooms. A committee of Sir Knights in full uniform met the visitors at the gate and escorted them through the building. In the dining room a bountiful table was spread and a general invitation was extended to all to "eat, drink and be merry." The members of the Ladies' Circle received the lady visitors.

MASONIC HALL

was thrown open to the visitors early in the day. The handsome decorations of the hall attracted a great deal of attention and admiration. Upstairs in the dining hall the weary Knights who had been on duty at the Union Depot were revived and refreshed.

ASCALON.

Ascalon's headquarters are the center of attraction for the visitors. They are at 919 Olive street. The cosy parlors and smoking-rooms on the second floor are handsomely fitted up, and a warm welcome is extended to all visiting Knights. To-morrow night Ascalon gives a reception at Chamber of Commerce Hall.

THE ARKANSAS BATTALION.

Arrival of the Knights from the Southwest—The Roster.

The Arkansas Battalion of Knights Templars assembled at Little Rock and were there furnished with a special train of Pullman cars, which left Little Rock Sunday afternoon and this morning arrived in this city, going at once to the steamer City of Providence, at the foot of Elm street. John D. Adams, the well-known steamboatman of Arkansas, is Grand Commander, and through his thoughtfulness this steamer has been procured as headquarters of the Arkansas Battalion. The Dardanelle Band, consisting of eighteen pieces, and considered one of the finest in the South, accompanies the battalion, and at intervals of every half hour renders selections. The battalion is a finely drilled corp under command of E. Sir Jno. M. Clayton, Grand Captain General, and is composed of an excellent body of men. They are headed by Sir Knight Jno. Dunning Adams, Grand Commander.

The battalion is composed as follows: Grand Commandery—Sir John D. Adams, G. C.; Sir P. D. McCulloch, D. G. C.; Sir Geo. L. Kimball, G. Gen.; Sir John M. Clayton, G. C. Gen.; Sir T. C. Tupper, G. The orders issued from the St. Louis headquarters by the Grand Commander are very explicit and for the smooth handling of the battalion during the Conclave. They invest Eminent Sir John M. Clayton, Grand Captain General, with the command of the battalion, and give instructions for the daily conduct of the commandery. They call the attention of the Knights to the tradition about displaying Templar emblems in saloons and each Knight is reminded that he is a representative of the State and holds her honor in their hands.

The Grand Encampment.

Grand Master Withers arrived yesterday with the California delegation. He is very sick. When he left China, six weeks ago, he was ill and on the ship nothing could be done to relieve him. He has been almost constantly traveling for six weeks and is very much exhausted. He was refused to all visitors to-day. His meals were served to him in bed, and he did not rise until a late hour. He is very anxious to take part in to-morrow's parade, and is harboring his strength for that purpose. His illness will interfere seriously with the business of the Encampment. Everything is now waiting on him. None of the committees can be appointed and no business transacted without him.

GEN. ROOME AT THE LINDELL.

Deputy Grand Master Roome of New York arrived this morning accompanied by Grand Treasurer Simons. Gen. Roome was to have gone to the Southern, where quarters had been engaged for him, but on the unexpected arrival of Grand Master Withers the room was turned over to him and Gen. Roome had to find accommodations elsewhere. Treasurer Simons is quite sick. He is well along in years and his trip out rather disagreed with him.

THE NEW GRAND MASTER.

There is little doubt that Gen. Roome will succeed Gen. Withers as Grand Master. The higher offices in the Grand Encampment usually go by promotion. Grand Senior Warden Thomas expressed the opinion this morning that Gen. Roome would be the next Grand Master. An effort will be made to put John R. Parson of St. Louis in as Captain-General. Mr. Parson has labored as hard as any one man to make the Conclave a success. He cannot hope to jump from his present position to anything higher than Captain-General, but he is being strongly pushed for that place.

THE CONVOCATION.

The Grand Encampment will be convoked in twenty-third Triennial Conclave directly after the grand parade to-morrow, some time between noon and 2 o'clock. The conclave will be held in the small Entertainment Hall of the Exposition building. Gov. Marmaduke will not be present. Mayor Francis and Grand Commander Browne will deliver addresses of welcome. The public will not be admitted, owing to the limited capacity of the hall. As soon as the speeches have been delivered the encampment will go into executive session.

The gallery of the entertainment hall is hung with gold-fringed banners of silk painted in appropriate designs. One of these banners will go to each of the Grand Commanderies of the States represented at the Conclave. From the centre of the hall strings of flags and banners are swung to the sides.

REGISTERED AT HEADQUARTERS.

The following members of the Grand Encampment are in the city: Grand Master Withers, Deputy Grand Master Roome, Grand Captain General McCurdy, Grand Senior Warden Thomas, Grand Treasurer Simons, Grand Recorder Parvin, Grand Prelate Betts, Grand Sword Bearer Parson, Grand Captain of the Guard Smith, Past Grand Master Palmer, General Sorely, Deputy Grand Commander McCulloch of Arkansas; Grand Commander Glidden, Deputy Brewer, Generalissimo Colcord and Past Grand Commander Roy of Dakota; Past Grand Commander Dustin of Illinois; Grand Commander McGrew, Deputy Dewey Generalissimo Townsend, Past Grand Commanders Parish, Van Saun, Ainsworth and Rothert of Iowa, Grand Commander Cook, Deputy Buck, Generalissimo Rogers, Captain-General Hunt, Past Grand Commanders Gould, Brown, Anderson, Hanna, Byington, Callahan, Waters, De Witt and Langdon of Kansas; Grand Commander Lyle, Captain-General Montgomery and Past Grand Commanders Bostwick and Sherley of Kentucky; Past Grand Commander Hanway of Maryland; Grand Commander Burnham, Deputy Chapin, Generalissimo Allen and Captain General Freeman of Massachusetts and Rhode Island; O. The pool has been boarded over, and above it will be placed potted plants in thicket. The pine wreaths will be loaded with cut flowers. Thousands of roses are now awaiting on ice the coming of to-morrow afternoon. The hall will be more elaborately decorated than it has ever been before. ### THE DECORATIONS.

A Liberal Display of Bunting in Honor of the Visitors.

The business portion of the city is elaborately decorated with Knight Templar flags, emblems, banners and mottoes. The most showy decorations are those about and upon the Court-house. All around the square are placed at equidistant points poles twenty-five feet high, trimmed and connected with each other by three festooning garlands of woven evergreens. Shields are on each part on each shield is the grand seal of some State or Territory of the Union. Behind the shields and falling from the top of the poles to the ground are long, graceful tricolored pennants. At the east and west front doors of the Court-house on two pyramidal pillars of evergreens. On the roof of each wing and immediately over the entrance are semi-circular sunbursts of evergreens, flags and bunting. The dome on Washington avenue all the business houses are tastefully trimmed. Olive street, too, is gay with fluttering bunting. Pine, Chestnut and Market streets have their share of flags. Fourth and Broadway and even the less thoroughfares have flags in every window, giving the streets a very holiday appearance. The flags and pennants are so thick that viewing them in perspective every breeze seems to put the walls in motion. The banners, flags and pennants, together with the lamps placed for illumination present a spectacle of brightness never before witnessed in the city.

Conclave Chat.

Sir Knight S. T. Bartlett, P. E. C. Hamilton Commandery, Bridgeport, Conn., is visiting his sisters Mrs. W. L. Reynolds and Mrs. A. B. Hurd at 2220 Adams street.

Kadosh Commandery of Ann Arbor, Mich., had twenty-six men in line. They were escorted to headquarters by the reception committee and the Cameron (Mo.) band.

Grand Recorder Parvin has preserved the badges of the different commanderies present at the San Francisco Conclave and has them made into a huge banner, which hangs upon the wall of his office.

Two of the Reception Committee at the depot yesterday were pining for a drink, but Templar regulations forbid their entering a saloon in uniform. So they went to the depot lunch counter and ordered "cold tea," and the waiter brought them two toddies in teacups.

Perhaps the cheapest railroad rate made for a great many years has been given the Knights Templars coming from Washington. The figure named by the Pennsylvania Railroad for the round trip, good for thirty days, with sleeping-car accommodations included both ways, was $15. The sleeping-car rate alone for the trip is $10 which reduces the railroad fare proper to $5 or $2.50 one way.

De Molay Commandery No. 12 of Louisville, Ky. (the banner commandery of the United States), will arrive at 6:40 this evening by the Ohio & Mississippi Railroad. Their headquarters will be at Armory Hall. They will give a reception and concert at their headquarters to-morrow night, on which occasion the drill corps will give a display drill, at the request of many who have not witnessed their proficiency. They extend a general invitation to all Sir Knights and their ladies to be present.

At the last Triennial Conclave, a number of proposed amendments to the Constitution and code of statutes of the Grand Encampment were submitted. The question was raised on their consideration, no notice of them having been made in the Grand Master's summons. By unanimous consent, they were referred to a committee which reported that "no summons having been issued for the present Conclave, the propositions cannot be legally considered at this time." Accordingly the proposed amendments were allowed to lie over until the Conclave about to open. They will be considered on Wednesday, together with a large number of amendments since submitted and mentioned in the Grand Master's summons for 1886.

ABOUT TOWN.

THE will of Katharine Schmidt was admitted to probate Saturday. The property is left to the husband.

THE Thirteenth street door of the Exposition will be opened for the use of the public hereafter.

WILLIAM WYMAN was arrested on the Levee yesterday by Officer McCarthy while endeavoring to sell a step-ladder, which he is supposed to have stolen.

THE fourth quarterly business and social meeting will be held by the St. Louis District Young Christian Association on next Friday evening, at 8 o'clock, at the Church of the Redeemer.

A WEST-BOUND freight train on the Missouri Pacific, while backing into a switch near Bartold's this morning, mounted the rail and jumped the track. Beyond a short delay to in-bound passenger trains no damage was done.

Sir Knight!

Before leaving the city don't fail to call on Scholten, the fine art photographer, 920 and 922 Olive street.

Railroads in Politics.

From the Kansas City Times (Dem.).

The discovery in Mr. Heard's district suggests the propriety of looking for the same agencies in the other districts of the State. The influences which have procured Republican and Democratic nominations should be scanned closely, and the results of railroad interference discovered and fearlessly exposed. No candidate, whether Democrat or Republican, should receive the votes of the people whose nomination has been secured by the votes of the slaves who consent to do the will of the corporations in politics, and wherever a candidate is found who has excited their hostility, in him, all things else being equal, may implicit confidence be imposed.

The outcrop of railroad political interference at Sedalia is a strong indication of a general railroad policy not only in Missouri but in all the States. The popular demand for National legislation subordinating the railroad corporations to National authority has doubtless instigated a national political railroad pool to influence nominations and elections and to thwart the popular movement.

From the Marshall Progress.

While we would not for a moment intimate that Mr. Heard's gallant opponent, Col. E. C. More, had anything to do with these railroads that would incline them toward him as their special choice, still the fact that they desire a new man in preference to Mr. Heard, is a compliment to his course while in Congress.

From the Philadelphia Record.

The Attorney-General of Missouri has commenced a suit against the corporations to break up their illegal combinations. In its result this suit will show whether the people of that State control its affairs or whether the State sovereignty has been turned over to its carrying companies. The process of the litigation will be eagerly watched in Pennsylvania, where a similar issue is on trial in the courts and at the ballot-box.

From the Farmington Times.

It should be made a penal offense for any railroad or corporation officer, or any one for them, to furnish their employes election tickets with a request or demand that they vote it, or to assume any sort of espionage over them at the polls or when they go to vote.

From the Springfield Leader.

The railroads should be taught that they are not masters but servants, and any and every attempt on their part to dictate to the people should be resented. They are common carriers, not political bosses. It will be a fortunate thing if it comes to an open fight between the people and the railroads. In such a fight the people would win, because the railroads would be forced to show their hand. Cleaner politics and better results would obtain and the State and the people would be infinitely the gainers.

NEW MEXICO MINES.

RICH YIELDS ON THE GREAT GOLDEN BELT OF THE SOUTHWEST.

Thriving Towns That Have Grown Up About These Rich Mining Points—An Opening for Foreign Capital in Rich Mining Properties.

Correspondence of the POST-DISPATCH.

SILVER CITY, September 14.—The capture of Geronimo and his band of Apaches, makes an end to their murderous raids through the Territory of New Mexico, and it will be but a little while until the resources of this Territory will be generally understood by the public. The chief industry is mining and always will be until either the change of climate brings that belt into the rainfall district, or artesian water is found to be general in all plains and valleys of the country. From careful investigation of the topography of the country I am persuaded that there are vast reservoirs of water and oftimes running streams that are subterranean, and that comparatively inexpensive boring would produce the water that would irrigate immense tracts of the now sterile lands of that country. But as the country stands to-day, it can only be spoken of as a mining territory, and in this respect it has a promise that but few can imagine who have not been through the mountains and seen for themselves the immeasurable promise of wealth there offered. I have been through Colorado, Wyoming and Idaho, and all things considered, the mountains of New Mexico offer greater promise than any of the other districts I have visited. There is greater inducements for the outlay of capital in mining developments and enterprises than any of the other districts I have visited. In the first place the climate is unsurpassed—fitted for out-door labor the year round. The best camps of Colorado are in localities which are locked up from three to eight months in the year, on account of immense snow falls. Of course mines can be so supplied that they may be worked the year round, but egress and ingress are practically suspended and prospecting and preliminary developments must be wholly suspended. Then in the mountains, especially in the Block Range, commencing as far north as Grafton, and running south through Chloride, Hermosa, Kingston, Silver City, all in pretty much the same general north and south direction, and taking in laterally Georgetown, Hillsboro and Lake Valley, you have a silver and gold-bearing belt which for extent and wealth is not equalled in any state or Territory of the Union. For surface exhibits and for showings of ore on the same amount of work there is no mining country on the globe that can surpass it.

Take Kingston, for example. There is more high grade ore coming out of that camp with the same amount of men employed than any camp in the United States, and until the discovery in the "Comstock" about four months ago, you would never hear the name of the camp or see it in print. In 100 days about $300,000 worth of ore was taken out of this mine. The "Lady Franklin" at the same camp, has turned out about $1,000,000 in the past eighteen months, while the Brush Heap, Illinois and a half dozen other properties are producing large quantities of high grades of ore. South lies Silver City with the "76 Mine," out of which Col. Bremer, in the last six or seven years, has taken out a million and a half. Near by is the "Solid Silver Mining Company," which has been, and still is, a strong producer. The "Old Man Mine," near Silver City, is another of these remarkable properties where a few months has turned out a fortune. East of Kingston is the Sierre Grande group of mines stocked at $20,000,000. Fabulous amounts have been have been taken out here, but the enormous capitalization makes the property subject to bull and bear efforts, and but little of the "real history" of these properties are known to any other than those on the "inside." To the northwest of Silver City is Georgetown—a regular and reliable producing camp. It has about a dozen producing mines. North of Kingston is Hermosa with a half-dozen properties worked in a quiet sort of way, the most notable of which are the "Palomas Chief," "Eagle," "Pelican" and "Ocean Wave." There is something of a similarity in the formations all these camps—limestone being the chief country rock. In Kingston the limestone is cut by porphyry dikes, and it is generally along these dikes the ore is found—between the lime and porphyry. The Silver City ores occur between the slate and lime, the same being true of both Georgetown and Hermosa camps. The "Solid Silver mine," however, near Silver City is a true fissure vein in syenite. But the best true fissure district I have ever examined is the Apache mining district, in Sierra County. This is about forty-five miles north of Kingston, and about fifty miles west of Eagle, a station on the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railway. The country rock is the green and red porphyries for the most part. There are occasional lime belts, however, mixed with the porphyry. When a vein is found traversing the porphyry and lime is are always met with, as in the case of the "Midnight" and "St. Cloud" mines. The former is on one of the boldest quartz leads I have ever seen. It is traceable across the porphyry mountains for five miles. The "Midnight," for the most part, is along a contact of lime and porphyry, the only part of the ledge where lime is found. The result is a remarkable body of ore on the surface croppings for over one hundred feet. As far as development has gone on this property it has made a remarkable showing. The porphyry is the overlying or overhanging wall formation, reminding one, in some respects of Leadville. Geology will be wonderfully belied if this is not the foundation of a big and enduring true fissure vein. On this lead is the "King 2" and the "Highland Chief" properties, both of which are properties of fine promise in the solid porphyry. The "St. Cloud" is also a true fissure in lime and porphyry contact, with fine promise for becoming a mine by the expenditure of some development money. Another fine true fissure vein is the "Dreadnaught," with a forty-foot shaft in two feet of ore. The "Silver Glance" is not to be forgotten as one to be named as the foundation of a big mine.

At the head of the range in this camp is a property which has more development on it than any other in the camp. This is the "Silver Monument." The work on it settles the question as to what the status of the other mines in that camp will become by depth. It is down 300 feet on the vein, has several hundred feet of levels run on the vein, and its true fissure character is most pronounced. The width of the fissure is from six to twenty feet. The ore seems for the most part to tend to the foot wall, though the greater part of the development work has followed the hanging wall.

On doing the development work on the property between $40,000 and $50,000 worth of ore has been taken out, and shipped all the way to Denver, and as much more is on the dump that will run $40 to $50 per ton. The ore shipped to Denver averaged in car load lots about $200 per ton. The development work on this mine could be contracted for $25,000, while double that value of ore has been shipped from the mine, with $40,000 to $50,000 ore on the dump with a value of about $40 per ton. This is a fine concentrating are, as are all the ores of this camp. If this mine were in Colorado it would bring a great sum of money. Indeed if it were a Colorado Camp it would be the center of active movements on the part of capital. The field is new. Now is the time for capital to look into the various New Mexico camps. St. Louis should occupy that field and St. Louis should be the leading mining center of the United States.

Another thing, St. Louis capital should push the Frisco road into New Mexico and lay the whole of that territory tributary to her development and trade. The Santa Fe Road is the only line into New Mexico from the East and it is a fearful monopoly. It runs all that trade in the interest of Kansas City, and they now talk of a line to Chicago. So far as traffic is concerned the Santa Fe route through New Mexico is the worst possible route for traffic. It was built before the mineral possibilities were known, and away from the mineral belt. What is now wanted is a rival line built into New Mexico, and along the mineral belt. The field is rich. It only wants development. Henceforth capital is safe in that country. Let St. Louis have her portion of this most inviting of all the new Western fields. CIVIL ENGINEER.

THE WABASH PURCHASE.

Proceedings To-Day in the Federal Court Before Judges Brewer and Treat.

The September term of the United States Circuit Court commenced this morning, with Judges Brewer and Treat on the bench. There was a large attendance of the bar. Judge Brewer announced that the court would sit at 10 o'clock every morning during the present week. All motions and demurrers would be disposed of prior to the arrival of the petit jury the second week of the term. All cases in equity and jury-waived cases will receive attention this week.

The Wabash Property.

Gen. Swayne, representing the Purchasing Committee of the Wabash, presented himself in court and made a statement. He said that E. T. Allen, the commissioner, had this morning filed with the clerk a report as to compliance with the order of Court confirming the sale of the Wabash property and the form of the deeds of purchase. As soon as the Court had examined the record he, Gen. Swayne, would make another application looking to the closing up of the matter. The deed transferring the title to the Purchasing Committee will be next in order, and the Court's order confirming the report of the master will be entered probably during the present week. The Commissioner reports that James F. Joy, Thomas H. Hubbard, Edgar T. Welles and O. D. Ashley on the 31st of July last deposited in the Third National Bank $562,500, the full amount remaining unpaid of the aggregate of their several bids at the sale under the decree.

It is probable that the road will pass out of the hands of the receivers by the 1st of next January. In the various courts there have been entered surrenders and cancellations on the part of the trustees of the general mortgage and consents to the cancellation of the leasehold interests of the Council Bluffs & St. Louis road, the Attica, Covington & Southern Road, the Clarinda & St. Louis, the DesMoines & St. Louis, the St. Louis, Jerseyville & Springfield and the Champaign & Southeastern roads.

The Ore and Steel Company.

The attention of Judges Brewer and Treat was given this morning in the Federal Court to the hearing in respect of the intervening petition of the Lackawanna Coal and Iron Company against the Ore and Steel Company. It is a large claim bordering on $70,000 and when it is disposed of the Ore and Steel Company's affairs in the courts will be speedily closed up. It is expected that an application looking to a decree will be made during Judge Brewer's present stay in the city.

A CASE OF SUICIDE.

The Bodies of the Woman and Babe Found in Lake Michigan Identified.

CHICAGO, September 20.—The body of the woman found floating in the lake at the foot of Diversey street, last Wednesday morning, was identified yesterday afternoon as that of Mrs. Annie Ferry, whose home was at No. 76 Best avenue, in Lakeview. A sister of the deceased, living on Thirty-seventh street, Chicago, having noticed descriptions of the body in the papers, went out to Lakeview yesterday to make inquiries. She identified the body as that of her sister, and went at once to the home of the deceased's husband on Best avenue. He stated that he had not seen his wife since Tuesday night, and, being unable to read, knew nothing of the fact that a body of a woman answering her description had been found in the lake. He went at once to where the body lay and identified it as that of his wife and the body of the infant found with her as that of their youngest child, whom the mother had taken with her when she left the house. He did not seem in the least affected by the discovery. Ferry is about 35 years old, and is employed in sewer building. To a reporter he stated that last Christmas he had a quarrel with his wife while he was drunk, and as a result "swore off," remaining sober until last Sunday, when he again became intoxicated. Tuesday he went home and quarreled with his wife again. When he awoke Wednesday morning she had gone, taking with her their youngest child. They were married four years. It is supposed that the woman committed suicide. The bodies will be buried to-day.

THE ARMORY FLOODED WITH STOLEN CHAMPAGNE AND LIQUOR.

Members of Local Military Companies Rob the California Knights and Daub a Vermilion Streak Across Their Fair Names—The Offenders Under Arrest—Two Warrants Sworn Out for Grand Larceny—An Attempt to Hush the Matter Up—Probable Action of the Military Authorities.

Last Saturday evening, the headquarters of California Commandery, Knights Templars, who are the guests of Ivanhoe Commandery, at the Armory Building, Seventeenth and Pine streets, were robbed of thirteen cases of champagne. The outrage was first discovered by Mr. J. H. Herringer, who has charge of the headquarters of the Golden Gate Knights. Calling the police to his aid, three members of the local militia were placed under arrest upon suspicion. They were found in the quarters of the Busch Zouaves, one of them, J. H. Goesling, bearing in his appearance the effects of the stolen wine. Goesling's companions in arrest were T. E. Cavender and R. E. Gleason. Cavender was released last night on bond.

Indignation against the perpetrators of the robbery knew no bounds last night, Knights, militiamen and citizens joining in the severest condemnation of the act, and expressing the hope that the guilty persons would be prosecuted to the fullest extent of the law. The finding of several cases of champagne, broken champagne bottles and drunken militiamen in the Zouave quarters naturally reflected severely upon that company, and a great deal of the odium of the affair was cast upon the Zouave organization. Inquiry by a POST-DISPATCH reporter this morning cleared up the matter somewhat, however, and showed that the selection of the Zouave quarters as the

was not to be charged against the members of the Zouave Company any more than against the members of several other local military organizations who participated in the outrage. It appears from the most reliable information at hand that the Zouave quarters were the only rooms in the Armory not occupied at the time by the Knights Templars and, consequently, were used as a sort of rendezvous by the members of the Zouaves and the members of other companies. The three men arrested were not implicated in the affair alone. The names of members of companies A, E, F and the Tredway Rifles were furnished the POST-DISPATCH, as persons who, if they did not take part in the stealing of the champagne, at least were cognizant of it and drank of it in company with the three victims.

Of the three men arrested Gleason alone is a Zouave. He was enlisted about three weeks ago, after having drilled with the company for several years. Gleason claims that he is innocent of the stealing of the wine, and that a great deal of the inebriety upon the occasion was caused by the contents of a keg of beer, which was on tap in the Zoo's rooms. He arrived upon the scene just as the police made their descent, and was scooped in as an offender.

T. E. Cavender is a member of the Tredway Rifles, and J. H. Goesling is not at present attached to any particular command, but as an ex-militiaman is tolerated as a hanger-on around the Armory. Goesling has in his possession a memoranda of the names of those who were in the Zouaves' rooms last Saturday night and drank of the stolen wine. He feels very sore at the prospect of when so many were concerned and demanded a "square deal" all around.

At the Assistant Prosecuting Attorney's office it was ascertained that applications had been made for warrants for grand larceny against J. H. Goesling and J. Chapman. No warrant was asked for Gleason or Cavender, but it is probable that the "Chapman" of the attorney's office means some one else and is a mistake.

At the Armory the Knights Templars who were so very indignant last night, had cooled down considerably this morning and refused positively to discuss the matter. They said that an attempt would be made to hush it up.

It is highly probable that the offenders will be dismissed the State service by the military authorities.

CINCINNATI, O., September 20.—The United States Court was crowded this morning when the case of the Bell Telephone Company was called, before Circuit Judge Jackson and District Judges Sage and Welker. Among the parties interested were Charles P. Bowditch of Boston, Vice-President of the Bell Company; Henry Metzger of Pittsburg, A. D. Bullock and George N. Stone of the Cincinnati branch. The Government counsel present were: Hon. A. G. Thurman of Columbus, O., Grosvenor P. Lowery of New York, ex-Solicitor John Goode of Virginia, Jeff Chandler and Charles S. Whitman of Washington. For the Bell Company were J. J. Storrow of Boston, Hon. Joseph E. McDonald, Indianapolis; Hon. R. A. Harrison, Columbus, O., and Hon. A. F. Perry of Cincinnati. The only persons who argued were Messrs. Thurman, Harrison and Storrow. The Bell Company had filed a plea against the jurisdiction, and also a motion to quash the Marshal's returns. The Government moved to strike out the motion from the files. The preliminary question arose as to whether the question of jurisdiction should be raised by the motion or by the plea. The Government insisted that it should only be raised by a plea. The Bell company pointed out that the practice was not uniform, some courts insisting on one way and some upon another; that they had for safety filed both and were content to have one hearing on the question under either the plea or the motion, the Court saving their rights under either, if the Supreme Court should ultimately determine that the other was the proper form. The Court ruled that it would hear the question of the sufficiency in law of the return under the motion, and it would hear the question of the truth of the return under the plea; one argument to cover the whole; and that it would frame its ruling so that neither party should be prejudiced by any mistake in question of form. The argument under this ruling will proceed this afternoon.

THE SHOP GIRLS OF PARIS.

The Hard Struggle for the Chance to Lead a Respectable Life.

Paris Letter in Philadelphia Press.

It is the gray dawn of a summer's morning on the boulevards. Over the asphalt flit hundreds of tidy, well-dressed girls of any age from 15 to 25. They all, or nearly all, have the classic pallor of the Parisienne, and the musical step and inimitably graceful gait—the peculiar characteristics of that queenliest of queenly women. Mostly these girls are bareheaded (I have often seen the darkest of tresses laden with the virgin snow, and the pretty damsels were actually smiling under the burden!); their locks are usually fastened in a wavy coil on the summit of the head, and they run along speedily hither and thither, satchel in hand, to commence the toil and labor of the day. These are the shop-girls of Paris—the tender, little, bewitching white slaves of the great metropolis on the banks of the Seine!

The Parisian shop-girl stands behind the counter or flits around the boutique from 7 a. m. to 9 p. m., almost uninterruptedly. Habit has wreathed her face with smiles, for it is the rigid rule of the establishment that she must smile as graciously as possible on every customer who comes along. Her heart may be laden with the heaviest and darkest sorrow, and she may, of course, have many troubles of her own to ponder over, but, nevertheless, she must coax a winning look to her face and the merry, ogling glance to her eyes, otherwise the proprietor is sure to get angry and give her her walking papers. Whether in such monster warehouses as the Louvre and the Petit St. Thomas, where the employes number several hundred, or in a solitary twelve-square-feet-nook-and-corner in one of the by-streets, the shop-girl is always courteous and affable. She has on every occasion a spick-and-span politeness about her which favorably impresses foreigners.

She may be classified in two categories. She is either the daughter of comparatively poor but hardworking parents, who take especial care of her and save her from moral wreck and ruin; or she keeps the company of some young man who pays her lodgings for her and takes her out to the suburbs for a walk every Sunday. If she belongs to the first category she is shy and reserved in conversation, and if she be not really a prude she must assume prudish airs, or run the risk of being reported to her parents by the patron for misconduct. I had occasion, while in Paris, to know the parents of several of these shopgirls.

One of these parents was a man of some 60 years of age, prematurely old and feeble. His spouse was a sickly little creature of the same age. They had an only daughter, Adele, who was a shop-girl in an establishment some half mile distant from the parental home. For the seven years she was thus employed she was never allowed to go to or from her place of business alone! Every morning, winter as well as summer, the sire would escort her to the shop door, and every evening at 9 o'clock sharp he would be found at his post—punctual as a Roman sentinel—to bring her back safely under the roof of the parental apartment. One day two years ago I met him on the boulevards as happy as a man could be. "What is the matter?" I asked. "Have you fallen in for the 500,000 francs of the Tombola des Beaux Arts?"

"No," was the answer; "but I have got Adele married at last," and he chuckled and rubbed his little withered hands feverishly as he spoke. "I got her married to a railway clerk who was not too exacting, as Adele's fortune was only 5,200 francs—her own earnings—and I was too poor to add anything to the dot myself." How long did it take her to earn that sum?" I asked. "Well," said he, "just seven years, at a salary varying from 40 to 70 francs a months. She commenced to work at 15 and she was 22 on her marriage day. It was I," he added, "that forced her to get married, as the rheumatism was tormenting me so much that it was with difficulty I could take her to the shop and fetch her back, and, unless her mother or myself could do the escorting business, why her reputation would be gone and she could never find a husband. So that is the reason, Monsieur, why you see me in such good spirits today."

Another paterfamilias assured me were it not for his daughter, who was a shop-girl, he and his wife would be compelled to beg their bread. Both were octogenarians, and the damsel herself was over 30 years of age. She earned two francs a day behind the counter, and when she returned home every evening she would hastily dispose of a frugal dinner, and sit down to a table where she wrote circular addresses for the remuneration of two cents per hundred! She would dispose of a hundred in an hour, and worked till 1 in the morning—earning 10 cents during the five hours! She could earn a franc and some odd centimes every Sunday over this operation, as she had nothing else to do that day. Such devoted attachment is by no means rare in Paris. Virtue still lives, or rather vegetates, among the shop-girls of the French metropolis, even though sin and vice may pollute the city's streets.

There is, however, unfortunately, a dark side to every picture. If many of the shop girls are virtuous, not a few are the contrary. Ask any of the latter why they have abandoned the moral path, and they will reply: "We could not live on virtue, Monsieur. How do you image that a girl could keep body and soul together on a franc or a francs and a half a day and pay 15 or 20 francs a month besides for her lodgings?" Poverty in Paris, like poverty elsewhere, is the primary cause of a maiden's fall, a fall that in nine case out of ten ends eventually in prostitution, or in an appalling death in the City Hospital.

The students of the Quartier Latin are the usual Lotharios of the Parisian shop-girls. The future judge, lawyer, barrister, or doctor of the Republic who is allowed 200 francs a month by his parents to pursue his studies espies a bewitching little damsel through the shop-window. Although he has no idea of buying anything he enters the establishment and asks if he cannot have a necktie or a cambric pocket handkerchief. The girl—all bows and smiles—lays out a large stock of the required articles on the counter, and while he stoops to examine them his fingers touch hers and there is an extraordinary amount of passion in the sly love glances that he bestows on her behind his fashionable binocle. After half an hour's delightful conversation he winds up by the observation that he regrets not being able to make any purchases, as he can find nothing that would suit him, and he bows his way out into the street.

At 9 o'clock that evening he is taking shelter under a portico not quite five yards away from that identical shop-door. The shutters are being put up, and the bewitching little damsel sallies out on her way homeward. He follows her stealthily through several streets, and brushing past her he throws a side-long look over his shoulder into her pretty features. She recognizes him and he salutes her. After a desultory chit chat that lasts a few minutes, he offers her his arm and she accepts it. They both sally onward until they reach the door of the furnished lodgings or hotel where she resides. He then very politely bows and withdraws after bidding her bon soir.

The same scene is renewed for several evenings afterward. Eventually, however, he suggests that as he loves her ardently, she might come and share pot luck with him in his student's quarters. She would be his own "petite femme," queen of his classic chamber, near the Sorbonne, and she could accompany him every Sunday for a boating on the Seine, or a stroll through the woods of St. Cloud, where they could have their picnics in the evening before returning to the Bal Mabille, where they would amuse themselves as only youth and beauty could. And as for the future why, they should cleave to each other to the end. Once his studies were finished and he had passed his examinations, he would lead her to the church and Maire and make an "honest woman of her." She would then be the wife of a lawyer or a doctor, loved and respected by an adoring husband, and petted and caressed by society.

While she is being fascinated by this dazzling tableau, and while she is comparing her friendless, cheerless, poverty-stricken existence with the rapturous and eventually honorable one she would enjoy in the arms of the youth by her side, the kisses he is pouring on her lips are becoming so irresistible that she pitches all moral considerations to the four winds of heaven, leaves her garret for the student's chamber, and enters on that gay, rollicking life peculiar to the habitues of the Quartier Latin. She has her midnight suppers, her outings on the Seine, her picnics at St. Cloud and her dances at the Bal Mabille, while, of course, still working daily behind the counter, till her lover takes out his diploma, when she becomes wild with joy, almost, at the bare idea of becoming his wife.

He, however, has no idea of performing his promises. One day, while she is selling neckties and cambric handkerchiefs to stray customers, he is packing up his household goods and taking the train for a country town, where he pleads in a court-house or dawdles about a surgery—marrying a provincial lassie who has a 100,000-franc fortune, and becoming in the course of time a very serious and very respectable paterfamilias. Meanwhile his victim, if she has not committed suicide, has abandoned the shop in despair. She becomes familiar with shame and infamy, and loses the last instincts of lingering humanity.

Such has been the fate, and such will be the fate, of many a Parisian shop-girl. The picture is by no means an exaggerated one. Drawn, as it is, from life, it affords another illustration of woman's credulity and the perfidy and heartlessness of man. It is, in fact, only the old story—older than the pyramids of Egypt.

Gravitation Still on Top.

From the Chicago Times.

It appears from the reports that the American Association for the Advancement of Science, which recently met in Buffalo, spent a good deal of time ridiculing Prof. Lancaster, who claimed to have discovered a means of overcoming the force of gravitation. The savants, who seem to be quite like other men, offered to bet $1,000 that the Professor was off his deep-seated and immovable foundation. That is, they expressed their incredulity in the more dignified form of offering him that sum if he would make his flying-machine soar. But the professor did not tax their pocketbooks, and the law that causes man's hopes to tumble still obtains.

TONGALINE is meeting with the success it so well deserves. W. S. Jenkins & Co., druggists, of Gatesville, Tex., say: Tongaline is surely winning its way in this section.

MEMOIRS AND LETTERS OF DOLLY MADISON. Edited by her grandniece. Boston and New York: Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1886. Cloth 16mo., $1.25. From Evans & Co., 311 North Eleventh street, St. Louis.

Dolly Madison was one of the fortunate ones of the earth. She was a good woman, so good, pure, gentle and high-minded that her story comes like a draught of fresh spring water to the imagination, satiated with the biographical records of famous intriguantes and popular actresses. Mrs. Madison, therefore, was good, but not more so than are a great many other women, whose lives from the cradle to the grave are one long record of sorrow. However, she used her prosperity well, and it is not every woman or even every good woman who can do this. Although the wife of a President Mrs. Madison was but little of a politician. A good daughter and excellent wife to two husbands in succession, a forbearing and loving mother to a scamp of a son—such is Dolly Madison's record. Who shall say that it could have been a higher one, even had the destinies of a nation lain in her hands?

Dolly was born a Quaker. Both her father and mother, members of highly respectable families, were strict members of the Society of Friends, and Dolly's childhood was passed quietly in their country home until she reached the age of 12 years. A rather pathetic incident in her childish career is here recorded.

A favorite with all, she was the particular pet and companion of her grandmother, who often made her happy by surreptitious presents of old-fashioned jewelry. Not daring to wear them before her father and mother, she sewed them into a bag, which was tied around her neck and concealed beneath her little frock. Almost the first grief of her childhood was the loss of this precious bag, discovered in school after a long ramble through the woods, during which the string must have become unfastened, scattering the treasure where days of searching proved of no avail. * * *

Equipped with a white linen mask to keep every ray of sunlight from the complexion, a sunbonnet sewed on her head every morning by her careful mother, and long gloves covering the hands and arms, one can see the prim little figure starting off for school with books under her arm and the dear but wicked baubles safely hidden beneath the severely plain Quaker dress.

At the age of 19 Dolly was very beautiful, and her biographer thus describes her:

A tall, slight girl of 19 with a delicately oval face and well formed, if not perfect, features; a complexion dazzlingly fair, contrasted with very black hair and blue eyes that gazed at you with much sweetness beneath the modest little Quaker cap.

See was married shortly afterwards to a promising young lawyer of means, named John Todd, who was also a member of the Society of Friends. Their married life, however, though perfectly happy, was brief, as Mr. Todd died three years afterwards of yellow fever, leaving his wife with two young children and an ample fortune. The account of his death is rather touching and brings out in strong relief the characters of both husband and wife.

Mrs. Todd, with her two children, one a baby of three weeks, was removed in a litter to Gray's Ferry to avoid the epidemic. Her husband, however, could not be kept away from the infected city and hurried back, arriving only in time to be present at the death-bed of his father and mother, both victims to the dreadful scourge of yellow fever. Deaf to the tearful entreaties of his wife Mr. Todd lingered on in Philadelphia to close his office and give assistance to the many friends needing help. When these duties were over he would never leave her again, he said. Alas! a vain boast. He returned to Gray's Ferry, and meeting his mother-in-law at the door, said: "I feel the fever in my veins, but I must see her once more."

Dolly, on hearing his voice, rushed downstairs and threw herself into his arms, heedless of infection, begging to be allowed to go back to town with him.

A few hours afterwards that good, unselfish spirit breathed its last, and the young wife was brought almost to death's door by the fatal scourge.

During her illness she lost her younger child and finally returned to Philadelphia with her mother and little boy. There she met some time later the recluse book-worm Madison, twenty-three years her senior (always thought to be an irreclaimable old bachelor). Her younger sister Lucy had been married in 1792 to George Steptoe Washington, an intimate friend of Madison's and nephew of Gen. Washington. Thus the introduction came about. In 1794 Mrs. Todd was married for the second time, and in spite of the differences in age, character and habits the marriage was an unfeignedly happy one, from first to last.

In 1801 Mr. Jefferson was elected President, Mr. Madison became Secretary of State, and Mr. Dearborn, Secretary of War. Happy and handsome Mrs. Madison came on to Washington prepared to do her best with the duties and responsibilities before her.

The position was in perfect accordance with her disposition. She was humble minded, tolerant and sincere, but with a desire to please, and a willingness to be pleased, which made her popular, and also a great friend and support to her husband. The power of adaptation was a life-giving principle in her nature, while an unusually retentive memory prevented her from ever forgetting either names, faces or the slightest incident connected with the personal history of any one. Washington at that time was almost a wilderness. The houses were few and far between, while the streets, or, rather, roads, were at times almost impassable from mud. There was, however, a small and agreeable resident society in the three District cities, Alexandria, Washington and Georgetown, where the entertainments began at 7 and lasted till 10.

In those days when steamboats were just beginning, railroads unknown, stage-coaches ingeniously uncomfortable, and even turnpike roads rare, journeys were made either on horseback or in a private conveyance. The daughter of a Senator who wished to enjoy the gayeties of the Capital accompanied her father 500 miles on horseback. The wife of a member of Congress being equally ambitious rode 1,500 miles on horseback passing through several Indian encampments on the way and was for many nights without a house to lodge in. Mrs. Madison herself had traveled from her Virginia home by easy stages incumbered with household furniture, occupying what seems to us in these days an incredible length of time.

The President's two daughters being married, and living in Virginia, Mrs. Madison aided by her sister usually presided at the White House and was much depended upon. Occasionally she witnessed some amusing incidents. When the first Turkish minister, Meley Meley, arrived in Washington a grand ball was given in his honor, to which the beauty and fashion of the town flocked, curious to see his elaborate dress, and turban made of plaster of Paris representing the finest muslin. He, however, showed perfect indifference to the open admiration about him, until, spying a large fat negress on her way from the kitchen, he rushed to her, and with much enthusiasm threw his arms around her, saying she reminded him of home and his best and most expensive wife, "a load for a camel."

Always amicable and conciliatory in dealing with friends or slaves, Mrs. Madison's popularity grew day by day. Her politeness was that which comes from the heart and cannot be imitated by those who have not the love and sympathy ready to be called forth at all times.

In 1809 President Jefferson, following the example of Washington, declined a third election and was succeeded by James Madison. The affairs of the two great nations, England and America, were fast approaching a crisis. It became more and more evident that the wrongs perpetrated by England against the United States would have to be corrected by force of arms. Many and sincere were the congratulations received by Mrs. Madison on going into the White House, nor was the confidence of her friends misplaced. The forms and ceremonials which rendered Mrs. Washington's and Mrs. Adams' drawing-rooms dull and tiresome were laid aside and no stiffness of any kind was permitted.

Though in no sense a learned woman, nor one who at any time cared for study, or even for reading, Dolly Madison was eminently a talented woman, full of a most delicate tact and so warm-hearted and amiable that even her early Quaker friends were induced to condone what they feared was "an undue fondness for the things of this world." Thirty-seven years of age, still very young in appearance and feelings, she dressed handsomely and "in the mode," clinging for a time to the pretty little Quaker cap, but discarding that even, when she went into the White House as unsuitable to her surroundings.

* * * The serious, thoughtful Madison, physically weak, and harassed and worried by the many cares, crowding on him at this time, often said that a visit to his wife in her sitting-room, where he was sure of a bright story and a good laugh, was as refreshing as a long walk. And it was for this end to cheer and amuse her husband that she kept a pleasant party of friends constantly with her making them feel that her home was theirs in the warmth of her hospitality.

At 85 years of age, June 28, 1836, Mr. Madison died, and though his wife was long in following him, she never really lived again after her husband's death. She became an Episcopalian in the latter years of her life and passed away in her 83d year, during an attack of slow apoplexy. Her blameless life stands forth as a bright example to all American women to "go and do likewise," and it may be that if their life and thoughts and aspirations are as pure as hers, their path may also lie in the light of the sunshine unclouded by a single care as did that of Dolly Madison.

A SERIOUS FIRE.

Store and Residence Burned—City Council Meeting—East Side News.

The City Council held a session this morning with all the members present and the Mayor presiding. City Clerk Canty presented his annual report. A petition was received to extend the water-works' mains from Eighth along Pennsylvania avenue to Tenth and down Ninth towards Summit, a distance of 350 feet. The petition was refused for the reason that the localities therein mentioned were not thickly enough settled. A petition was also received from the Mobile and Ohio railroad company requesting that Front street from Trendley to Piatt be paved with granite. The clerk was authorized to advertise for bids for the work. The salaries of police and street laborers were allowed and ordered paid.

STORE AND RESIDENCE BURNED.

At 4 o'clock this morning the grocery store of Henry Prentiss, on Second and Converse streets, was discovered to be on fire. Mr. Prentiss, whose residence is right next door to his store, attempted to extinguish the flames with the assistance of his neighbors, but the fire had made such headway that all their efforts were unavailing. The flames communicated to his dwelling also and both buildings and their contents with the exception of a few pieces of furniture were reduced to ashes. The buildings were owned by Maurice Joyce and the loss to him was about $1,500. Mr. Prentiss' loss on his stock and furniture was about $1,000.

MINOR ITEMS.

The St. Clair Gun Club held a shoot at Winstanley's Grove yesterday for the medal donated to the club by Mr. James D. Baker of Lebanon. The medal was won by John Hester, who scored fourteen out of a possible twenty birds. Mr. Baker also donated an extra prize of $5, which was divided between Messrs. Malone, Baugh and Winstanley.

Yesterday afternoon the residents on Division street between Main and Fourth became greatly alarmed over the antics of a mad dog. A harnessmaker attempted to relieve their fears by putting a few bullets in the dog, but after he had fired seven times without any result but to increase the excitement, Officers Mahoney and Canty were sent for and the former made the cur bite the dust on the first discharge of his weapon.

Henry Washington, a colored man, stood on the steps of the City Hall yesterday afternoon, and was pointing out the true way to heaven to a number of listeners, when an officer, who thought the preacher's words likely to lead the crowd astray, arrested him and locked him up.

Last night a shot was fired in "Frenchy's" saloon, near the Relay Depot, and an officer arrested Mr. Philip Fraband on the supposition that he had discharged the weapon. Mr. Fraband denied the discharge, and no revolver was found on him. He was allowed to go on his own recognizance.

Yesterday afternoon a boy named Hoover, whose father is building a new house on Fifth street near St. Louis avenue, cut a boy named Mat Keeveley because the latter refused to leave the building when he ordered him to do so. Keeveley's wounds, which are in the arm and leg, are not serious. Hoover was not arrested.

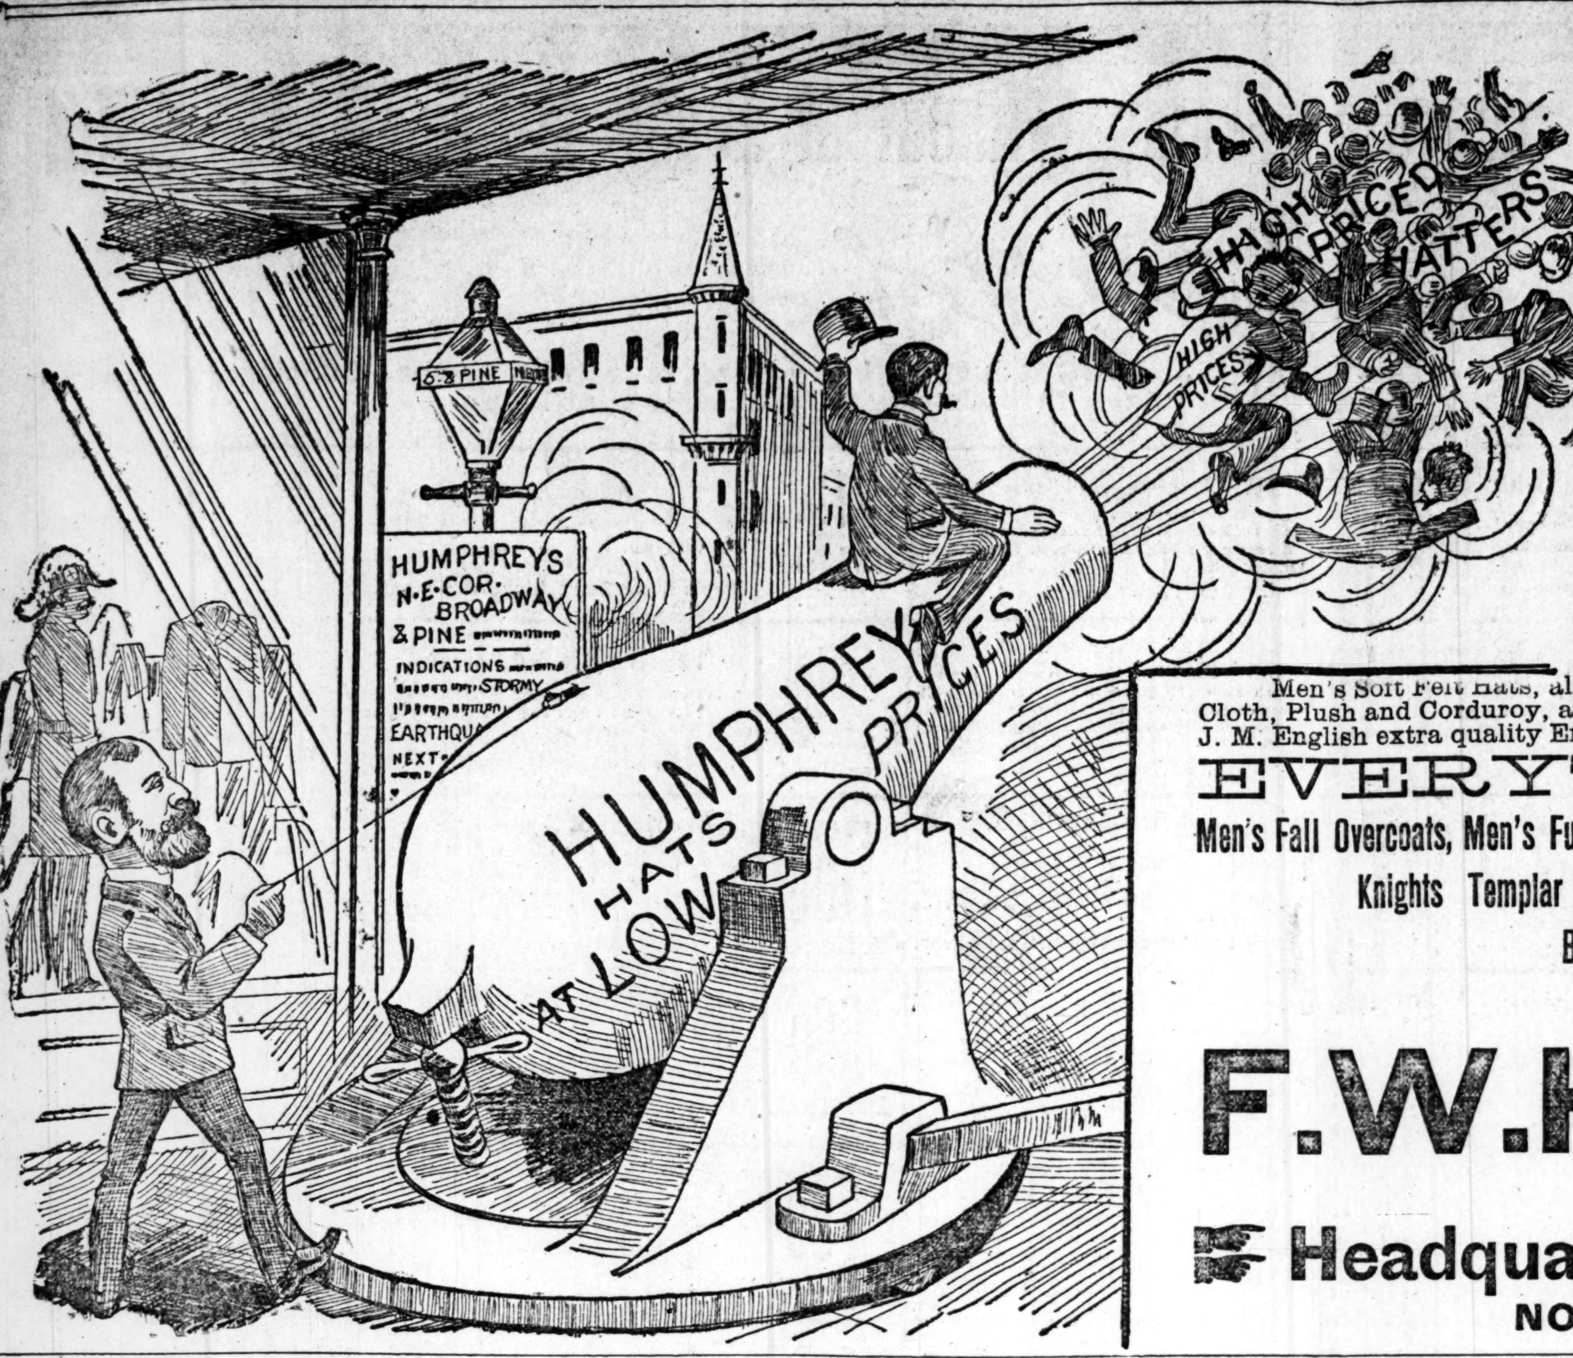

A box-car of the Vandalia was broken into by some boys yesterday and a lot of crockery was stolen. The boys who perpetrated the robbery are known and will be arrested.

The City Court of Record convened this morning, with Judge Canby on the bench. A number of cases were heard and passed upon.

Attractions for Conclave Week at the Theaters—Notes.

The conclave and festivities had an encouraging effect on the theaters last evening, the streets overflowing into the various houses and giving them good audiences.

THE GRAND

was packed, the attraction being the opening of Rice's "Evangeline" by a company under the management of W. W. Tillotson. Few burlesques have enjoyed greater popularity than this, and memories of the Lone Fisherman and the beautiful scenes and funny business of the original production drew the crowds. The piece was not treated in the best of style last night. It was handsomely costumed and the scenes and special attractions were undoubtedly fine. The March of the Amazons was a beautiful feature, rich and attractive in costuming. It was one of the best of the kind ever given here. The cast, however, was not strong outside of Fortescue as Catherine and James S. Maffitt as the Fisherman. The solo singing, as a rule, was very bad. Miss Harmer as Evangeline was a weak effort, as were most of the other parts as compared with what has been done with them.

THE OLYMPIC.

Among the matters that make one tired Sol Smith Russell forgot to mention his own play. The newness of the author need hardly have been announced in the programme. It was evident from the lines and situations. The play is a bad case of dramatic paresis. Sol Smith himself was the "Pa," and by his exceptional abilities as an entertainer managed to work some genuine humor out of the piece. He kept the audience laughing by his quaint oddities. His song, "Some Things That Make Me Tired," caught on and he was generally amusing. The cast was not good, the best work being done by the ladies, Misses Mattie Ferguson, Emma Hagger, Nelson and Bauckur. Mr. Fred P. Ham was about what his name indicates as Sydney Bumps. Mr. Frank Lawton gave a clever whistling specialty.

PEOPLE'S.

Frank E. Aiken opened at this house last night in "Against the Stream," a melodrama which abounds in sensational scenes and effects. Eight tableaux, with a fire scene, are given during the performance. Mr. Aiken takes three characters and is supported by a large company.

STANDARD.

"Skipped by the Light of the Moon," the farce comedy which Harrison and Gourlay made famous, opened at the Standard last night to a packed house. Messrs. Farrell and Frankle took the principal roles and had full support.

Notes.

The Casino will present an entire new bill to-night.

The cowboy pianist and a host of other attractions may be seen at the Palace Museum.

The Standard will give five matinees during its present engagement—Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, Saturday and Sunday.

Mr. Charles Pope will begin his season in the legitimate to-night with "Virginius." To-morrow night "Othello" will be given.

Special matinees will be given on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday at the Grand and Olympic. A matinee will also be given on Wednesday at the Olympic.

THE FLAMBEAUX.

Displays in Honor of the Knights Templars on Wednesday and Friday Evenings.

The Flambeau Battalion of this city will give two grand nocturnal displays this week in honor of the visiting Knights Templars. The first will take place on Wednesday evening and the second on Friday evening, as per announcement in the official programme of the fall festivities. Upon each occasion there will be $2,000 worth of fireworks used to give a brilliant effect to the display and the line of route will be varied so as to insure safety and at the same time afford a grand spectacle for the thousands of visitors located at private residences in the West End. The directors of the Athletic Parade Association, of which the Flambeau Battalion forms a part, will hold a meeting this evening at the Mercantile Club to consult with Col. Ware and perfect the details for the two displays.

In order to avoid the possibility of accidents rockets will be arranged on the rocket wagons regulating the direction upward of each rocket, and the members of that company will be placed out of range of danger. The Police Department will be called upon to furnish a guard for each wagon, and any hoodlum attempting to interfere with the appliances of the Flambeau Battalion or threatening mischief in any way will be promptly arrested and prosecuted vigorously by the association.

Mr. La Chance, the wounded member of the Flambeau Company, was resting easy this morning and the medical attendants are very hopeful of his speedy recovery. He has youth and strength and remarkable grit in his favor. Yesterday he was visited by the officers of the battalion and members of their families.

Increased Its Stock.

The stockholders of the Union Depot Railway Company voted Saturday to increase the capital stock from $250,000 to $400,000, agreeing to the increase. Much more than a majority of the stock was voted. The proceeds from the sale of new stock is to be applied to the reimbursement of the President, John Scullin, for moneys expended by him on extensions, and to provide a fund to be drawn upon in case a new motor power of practical value is found and adopted by the company.

A MIRACULOUS ESCAPE.

A Passenger Train Runs Wild in the Black Canyon in Utah.

CHICAGO, September 20.—A special from Denver, Colo., to the Times says: The passengers who arrived yesterday on the Salt Lake train report an almost miraculous escape from a fearful accident in the Black Canyon. Mr. W. F. Wakeman of San Francisco, who was on the train, thus describes the accident:

"At about 7:30 o'clock Saturday morning our train, consisting of thirteen cars, drawn by two engines, was coming through the canyon at a rate of about twenty miles per hour. I suddenly felt a shock, then a series of bumps and jars that convinced me that the train was off the track. In the rear of the Pullman, in which I was, was the private car of General Superintendent Bancroft, and attached to his car was an observation car. Here nearly 100 passengers, en route to Denver, were gathered, contemplating the beautiful scenery through which we were passing. The first jolt frightened everybody, and in an instant a perfect panic prevailed. Ladies fainted, others became hysterical, while men blanched with fear, but compelled the ladies to remain quiet. Each moment we expected to be dashed to pieces against the rocks or else be thrown into the canyon below. One young man named Barney, a commercial traveler, was standing on the steps at the time when the cars left the track. He became so thoroughly frightened that he jumped blindly forward. He was thrown violently against the rocks and kept bounding between them and the cars until they were stopped. The horrible jolting continued for a distance of nearly 300 yards. When the train stopped we carried Mr. Barney into the cars and gave him every possible attention. Fortunately he sustained no serious injuries internally and we patched up his bruises as best we could. When the train reached Pueblo he was turned over to the care of a physician. Those of the cars off the track were badly wrecked, and the escape of the train from being hurled into the bottom of the canyon is almost marvelous. The nerve and presence of mind of the engineer were all that prevented the train from being a wreck on the rocks below, for had the train gone a few feet further it could not have been saved."

THIS week fifty different styles of men's business suits in good cassimeres and cheviots will be offered at $5, $6 and $7.50 at the GLOBE, 705 to 713 Franklin avenue.

Holiday On 'Change.

The proposition to adjourn 'Change on Wednesday was submitted to a meeting of the members Saturday and on Gov. Stanard's motion it was decided to adjourn on that day. The traders on the call voted on the proposition to delay opening to-morrow till 11 o'clock a. m. and unanimously favored the delay. The delay to-morrow is to give the members an opportunity of witnessing the Knights Templars' parade and the Wednesday adjournment for the benefit of the Charity Concert at the Fair Grounds.

STAND UP, SPALDIN

A WORD FROM THE PRESIDENT OF BROWN-STOCKING CLUB.

Kelly and McCormick to Retire from Base-Ball Business—Probability Kansas City Will Be in the Associat Next Year—The M. A. A. C. Meet terday—Johnson Breaks a Record—livan Still a Champion.

Chicagoans are possessed of that ineffable frontery in base ball, as in all things else, wh enables them to literally "face" themsel out of every dilemma into which they themselves pushed as well as to force th own alleged superiority upon all, no mat how unwilling the victim may chance to President Spalding of the Chicago Base B Club and his minion, Adrian Anson, h been bluffing at the St. Louis Association Ba Ball Club until patience has ceased to b virtue and the management of the Bro Stocking Club has determined to put a stop all their senseless and unbusiness-li brags. In an interview with Watkins of D troit, published in Saturday's POST-DISPATC that base ball manager, speaking for Spaldin said that the Chicago President would not p the Browns excepting at a place outside of Louis or Chicago, and that for a stake of $5,0 He also said that in case such an arrangeme were made the Chicago Club would so ba "do-up" the Browns that the latter's li would go out for evermore.

In reference to these boastful statemen President Von der Ahe said to-day to a Pos DISPATCH representative that such a remar taking it as an utterance from Al. G. Spaldin was the simple "bluff of a broken-do gambler."

"My club," said Mr. Von der Ah and the light in his clear eye waxed brillia as his spirit waxed warm, "are the champio of the world. It is not for me to go to Spal ing, but for him to come to me. He discou ages betting on base ball on general princ ples, and yet he offers to bet and bet large himself. I will never and under no circu stances put up a single dollar as stake with the Chicago Club. If Spaldi wants to settle the question once for all, I w agree to put up $500 or $1,000, the whole amou to be divided among the players of the winni team. Let the games be played in St. Lou and Chicago, the proper places to play the His claims that his players were drunk la year are the poor excuses for a beaten hors His players were not drunk. If they were was his own fault. In a struggle of that ki he should certainly see that they kept sobe When the season is over I will se him a formal offer, and if he does not acce it he will stand branded as being afraid meet us, except upon such terms as no fa minded, honorable base ball man will ente tain for one moment. In all the contests wi League clubs the Browns have had they ha shown themselves the best and they are rea to do so again. That is sufficient to settle t question as to their playing qualities. No let Spalding do as he will."

On Wednesday, Secretary Weldon of t Browns called at the Lindell Hotel and talk to the Chicago players on the prospects o series. McCormick, the pitcher, said didn't think they would play. "No," put the irrepressible Kelly, smiling under his mu tache, "we're tired of base ball altogether a we're going to retire in the spring, ain't Mac?" "Y-a-a-s" replied the pitche "I've been a public man too long now and think I'll build a cottage by the sea and li in it in the winter time," and then Kelly a he hah-hahed, and would not discuss the su ject seriously. The fact of the matter is th the Chicago crowd are afraid and will on play under conditions which they know M Von der Ahe will not agree to, pretty mu the same as Paddy Ryan bluffs at Sulliv when that slugger is a thousand miles away.

A WORD FROM THE PRESIDENT OF THE BROWN-STOCKING CLUB.

Kelly and McCormick to Retire from the Base-Ball Business—Probability That Kansas City Will Be in the Association Next Year—The M. A. A. C. Meet Yesterday—Johnson Breaks a Record—Sullivan Still a Champion.

Chicagoans are possessed of that ineffable effrontery in base ball, as in all things else, which enables them to literally "face" themselves out of every dilemma into which they find themselves pushed as well as to force their own alleged superiority upon all, no matter how unwilling the victim may chance to be. President Spalding of the Chicago Base Ball Club and his minion, Adrian Anson, have been bluffing at the St. Louis Association Base Ball Club until patience has ceased to be a virtue and the management of the Brown Stocking Club has determined to put a stop to all their senseless and unbusiness-like brags. In an interview with Watkins of Detroit, published in Saturday's POST-DISPATCH, that base ball manager, speaking for Spalding, said that the Chicago President would not play the Browns excepting at a place outside of St. Louis or Chicago, and that for a stake of $5,000. He also said that in case such an arrangement were made the Chicago Club would so badly "do-up" the Browns that the latter's light would go out for evermore.

In reference to these boastful statements, President Von der Ahe said to-day to a POST-DISPATCH representative that such a remark, taking it as an utterance from Al. G. Spalding, was the simple "bluff of a broken-down gambler."

"My club," said Mr. Von der Ahe, and the light in his clear eye waxed brilliant as his spirit waxed warm, "are the champions of the world. It is not for me to go to Spalding, but for him to come to me. He discourages betting on base ball on general principles, and yet he offers to bet and bet largely himself. I will never and under no circumstances put up a single dollar as a stake with the Chicago Club. If Spalding wants to settle the question once for all, I will agree to put up $500 or $1,000, the whole amount to be divided among the players of the winning team. Let the games be played in St. Louis and Chicago, the proper places to play them. His claims that his players were drunk last year are the poor excuses for a beaten horse. His players were not drunk. If they were it was his own fault. In a struggle of that kind he should certainly see that they kept sober. When the season is over I will send him a formal offer, and if he does not accept it he will stand branded as being afraid to meet us, except upon such terms as no fair-minded, honorable base ball man will entertain for one moment. In all the contests with League clubs the Browns have had they have shown themselves the best and they are ready to do so again. That is sufficient to settle the question as to their playing qualities. Now, let Spalding do as he will."

On Wednesday, Secretary Weldon of the Browns called at the Lindell Hotel and talked to the Chicago players on the prospects of a series. McCormick, the pitcher, said he didn't think they would play. "No," put in the irrepressible Kelly, smiling under his mustache, "we're tired of base ball altogether and we're going to retire in the spring, ain't we Mac?" "Y-a-a-s" replied the pitcher. "I've been a public man too long now and I think I'll build a cottage by the sea and live in it in the winter time," and then Kelly and he hah-hahed, and would not discuss the subject seriously. The fact of the matter is that the Chicago crowd are afraid and will only play under conditions which they know Mr. Von der Ahe will not agree to, pretty much the same as Paddy Ryan bluffs at Sullivan when that slugger is a thousand miles away.

One Victory, One Defeat.

The Detroits were in a slugging humor Saturday and consequently defeated the Maroons badly, notwithstanding the fact that Kirby pitched. The score summarizes as follows: Detroits, base hits, 11; runs, 9; total bases, 17; errors, 2. Maroons, base hits, 2; runs, 1; total bases, 2; errors, 6.

The Browns defeated the Baltimores at Baltimore, but by a smaller surplus of runs. The Champions earned one run, scored 3, hit 6 times for first with a total of 7 and made three blunders. The Baltimores made 2 runs, 2 hits, 2 total, and scored one error.

Base Ball on Many Fields.

Played yesterday—Brooklyn, 4; Mets, 1.

Accident on the Ball Field.

CHICAGO, September 20.—A special to the Times from Dallas, Tex., says: In a game of base ball yesterday between the Dallas and Abilene clubs, Harry Reed, first baseman of the Dallas club, had both bones of his left leg broken squarely off between the knee and ankle. He had batted a swift grounder to third base, from where it was fielded to first to cut off Reed. Berry, first baseman of the Abilenes, stood on the base line and tripped Reed, with the result stated. The bones snapped like a pistol, the noise being heard all over the grounds. Doctors say that amputation may become necessary.

NOT UNLIKELY.

Probability That Kansas City Will Be in the Association Next Year.

The following bit of base ball gossip from the Sporting News will strike those who have been studying the situation as likely:

Just now there is plenty of gossip concerning the plans of the League and American Association for next year. Only a few days ago there was a secret meeting of the League officials, at which the prospects for next year were talked over. It was then believed that the St. Louis Browns and the Pittsburgs would jump the American Association, and so believing, the League officials named St. Louis, Chicago, Detroit and Pittsburg as their Western teams for next year. The four Eastern clubs were to represent New York, Philadelphia, Boston and Washington, just as they do now. It was found, however, after a lively trial, that the St. Louis Browns would not enter into such a combination without the privilege of Sunday games. This the Eastern clubs would not allow, and the proposed arrangement was thus at the very outset nipped in the bud. It was not believed at this time that the Maroons would go on. For this reason they were not counted in the arrangement at all. Recently, however, the fine showing of the present League club has put them on a good footing with the other League members, and, in consequence, they are given a place in next year's organization. The Pittsburgs, however, unlike the Browns, have concluded to leave the American Association, and they will, in all probability, take the place of the Kansas Citys. Right here we are asked how the League will get rid of the Kansas City team. At the time the Kansas Citys and Washingtons were admitted to League membership there was some doubt as to their eligibility, and they were compelled to hand in their blank resignations, with the understanding that the League should have the right to act upon them at any time. For this reason they can be ousted from the League at any moment. Anyone with half an eye can see that Pittsburg is the very city the League officials want. There only week-day games are played and the attendance is something enormous. Besides that Pittsburg is adjacent to the Eastern and Western League cities and is right on the line between Chicago and New York, the two great objective points in the League.

Kansas City, on the other hand, is out of the way. Besides that, it has been proven that week day games will not pay out there. With all these facts in view, therefore, it would appear that next year Pittsburg will be in the National League in the place now held by the Kansas Citys. The latter, on the other hand, will probably be given a place in the American Association. In the latter body the Kansas Citys will likely do well and the change, therefore, will benefit rather than injure the club. As a base ball center Kansas City is essentially a Sunday town and in the American Association, where Sunday games are allowed, it will be sure to prosper. One thing is certain, however, Pittsburg will be in the League next year in the place now held by Kansas City.

JOHNSON'S PERFORMANCES.

He Covers the 100 Yards in 10 Seconds and Raises the Ten-Standing-Jump.

If it had not been for the rain early on Sunday morning there is not the least doubt that Harry M. Johnson would have equaled or surpassed his own former record of 9 4-5 seconds in the 100-yard sprint made at Cleveland. As it was the track was too soft for fast time and lengthy strides, but Johnson flew over the mud at the rate of ten seconds to the 100 yards. Of the five watches held up on him four registered the time 10 seconds and one 10 1-5 seconds. Johnson, if he failed to surpass himself in the short sprint, smashed a record in the ten-standing-jumps performance. He covered 109 feet 2 inches, beating the best record, 108 feet 10 inches, by four inches. Johnson calculated upon a longer jump, and attributed his failure to make it to the soft condition of the ground. "I can't complain though," he said when it was over. "I only feel sorry that I didn't do anything with the 100 yard, but I did as well as any one else ever did, ten seconds."

Johnson was highly pleased with the athletic games, and said that the Missouri Club gives a splendid show. He said he would come to St. Louis for the next spring meeting of the club and gladly assist the members to amuse their friends. He will go from St. Louis to Pittsburg, where he contemplates arranging a race with Skinner. Johnson is a splendid athlete and has the build of an ideal short-distance sprinter.

NO RECORDS BROKEN.

A Soft Track Interferes With the Intentions of the M. A. A. C.

The fall games of the Missouri Amateur Athletic Club yesterday at Union Park were a great success financially although a slow and soft track made the athletes' anticipations fall a little short. In the 100-yard sprint F. Barstow won in 10 seconds, as taken by three watches with slight variations. Putting the shot was won by A. Lubke of the Lacledes; the tug of war was won each time by the Laclede crew and the members' race was won by French with Helmich second. The bike race resulted in J. M. Hodgen's coming in first and E. N. Sanders second. The running high kick was won by Thos. O'Connor, A. C. Baum second. The hurdle handicap was won by F. Barstow, O'Connor second, and the pole-vaulting by Harry Lytance, whose height was nine feet seven inches. The mile was captured by French with Barstow second, the running hop, step and jump by Barstow, who covered forty-two feet three inches, and the obstacle race by Lingo. Triple horizontal bar performance by Messrs. Stone, Arata and Farnham, and fancy bicycle work by Klepstein and Gordon were interesting specialties.

GREENWOOD'S GLORY.

The Great St. Louis Bicyclist Eclipses all Records.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH.

BOSTON, September 20.—Hal Greenwood, the noted Star bicycle rider of St. Louis, climbed Corey Hill four successive times without dismounting. He afterward climbed both sides of the hill without dismounting. Large and enthusiastic crowds witnessed the performance. This is the most famous hill in New England and up to 1885 had been climbed by but one or two riders, who were glad enough to reach the top once. Greenwood, who is a member of the St. Louis Ramblers, thus wins for his club the hill-climbing championship of the world.

THE SPRINGFIELD RACES.

At Springfield, Mass., Friday, 10,000 people witnessed the bicycle races. The track was somewhat heavy. Neilson beat Wood for a mile, but it was a loafing race and had to be run over, Wood winning in 2:44 1-5. Burnham beat Ives in the 3-mile tricycle race and made a record of 8:56 2-5. Five-mile amateur, Crist, 1; Rich, 2; time, 16:26. Promateur mile heat, Rowe first, Hendee second; time, 2:44 3-5. Hendee led to the home stretch, where Rowe, with a fearful spurt, won by a length amid the wildest excitement. Mile professional handicap, W. M. Woodside (20 yards) first, Morgan (120) second. Foster and Crist ran a dead heat for first in the three-mile amateur, Rich third. Ten-mile lap, Rowe first, Rhodes second; time, 30:44. One-mile professional open, Woodside first, Meetson second; time, 2:46.

He Is Still a Champion.

John L. Sullivan proved to his friends last Saturday night that he is made of the proper stuff for men of the fistic arena and once more proved that his ability to stop all comers is undoubted. A great crowd was present in the hall at Allegheny City when the man from Nicetown and John L. stepped upon the stage. Sullivan adopted his great rush-in-the-beginning tactics and laid away a few snug ones on Hearld's face and body as a starter for the first round. In the second Hearld was aggressive but the blows he showered upon the champion had no effect, except one in the face, which surprised John L. a little. That blow sealed Hearld's doom, and if the police had not interfered so as to prevent the fight from progressing beyond the second round, Hearld would have been effectually silenced. The referee awarded the contest to Sullivan, and John L. says, having once whipped Hearld, he will pay no more attention to him.

A FINANCIAL SENSATION.

Wm. E. Gould, a Prominent Banker of Portland, Me., a Heavy Defaulter.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH.

PORTLAND, Me., September 20.—It was discovered yesterday that William E. Gould, cashier of the First National Bank in this city, is a defaulter to the amount of $87,000. To say the entire community is surprised but faintly expresses the actual situation of affairs. Mr. Gould has always been looked on as a model man by people acquainted with him. His piety was almost ostentatious. He had been in the habit of preaching in small churches in the vicinity of this city, to supply vacancies of regular pastors, and his sermons to young men on moral rectitude and the advantages of strictly honest business principles have won him some notoriety and not a little admiration. Mr. Gould recently built a very handsome house on State street at a cost of $50,000 and indulged in other luxuries of living which any man in receipt of a good salary and with a fair social position might do without exciting public comment. No man in the city has gradually got a closer grip on the people's confidence than Mr. Gould. He is President of the Hayden Association, Vice-President of the Portland Trust Company and a trustee in the Maine Savings Bank, one of the strongest institutions of its kind in the State. It is not known to a certainty whether these institutions are involved in his crookedness, but some of the stockholders and depositors are

FEELING VERY NERVOUS ABOUT IT.

Some of the directors visited the bank to-day to take a casual look at the books and securities and a rigid investigation will be made at once. The people in the bank where Mr. Gould is employed placed unlimited confidence in him. The bank recently erected a new building at a cost of $180,000 or more and Mr. Gould had very much to do with making the contracts and looking after the disbursements. Gould's father is also a prominent banker with an unblemished reputation, and is at present cashier of the National Traders' Bank. It was largely through the father's influence that the son was made Vice-President of the National Banking Association of which he was a conspicuous member. The younger Gould's opinions were also given weight in grave questions of financial policy and his papers on banking topics have been considered features of annual meetings of the Association. Gould was somewhat of a society favorite, as a young man, but his social position was secure when he married the handsome daughter of Neal Dow, the veteran Prohibition leader. Scarcely a young lady in the State had a larger circle of acquaintances than Miss Dow, and Gould was considered a very fortunate fellow when he won her. Three children have been born to them, the eldest son holding a responsible position in the same bank with his father. Mr. Gould's family and his immediate relatives are almost wild over the disgrace which the defalcation has brought upon them, and the exposure which it was impossible to avoid. As it is, considerations for the feelings of the family have induced the directors of the bank to make it as easy as possible for the defaulter. Instead of a criminal prosecution he has simply been arrested by the bank authorities on a civil suit to await the action of the Comptroller of the Currency. The capital of the bank is $1,000,000 and the surplus $300,000. It is said that the usual business of the bank will not be affected by the loss. The doors will be open to-day as usual, and precautions have been taken to meet a possible run. The directors of the bank refused to talk last night, and it is impossible to get much definite information about the defalcation, but the amount will certainly reach $87,000 even if it is not larger. The silence is to shield Gould as much as possible, but the facts are bound to become public property before long. Harrison J. Libby is president of the bank and Gov. Robie is one of the directors. It is impossible even by diligent inquiry to get the slightest inkling of the manner in which Mr. Gould has spent the money he is accused of having appropriated. He never speculated, so far as can be ascertained, and assiduously shunned all forms of gambling. His habits of living have not until lately been at all expensive. Gould has been so prostrated by the shock that it is said to be useless to try and get from him an intelligent statement of his financial trouble or the causes that led to it.

The Kansas City Police Make Short Work of Loud-Mouthed Anarchists.

CHICAGO, September 20.—A special to the Times from Kansas City, Mo., says: For several months past Walter Vrooman, who styles himself "The Boy Orator of Kansas," has been delivering anarchistic speeches each Sunday afternoon on the public square within twenty yards of the Central Police Station. He has succeeded in stirring up the ignorant class of working people considerably, but up to yesterday he had not been interfered with. Yesterday he was interrupted in the midst of a harangue by a policeman acting under orders and taken to the Central Station, where he was informed that the meetings would have to be discontinued. Vrooman was badly scared and readily made the required promise. While he was at the station one of the crowd which had been listening to him mounted the stand and began a speech, urging the laboring men to arm and defy the police. He was promptly pulled down by a policeman and begged to be released. Another one of the crowd mounted the stand but he was also pulled down by the police. Then the crowd began to close in on the few police around the stand who drew their clubs, but were prevented from using them by the timely arrival of Sergt. Nugent and a squad of additional policemen. The crowd was dispersed with difficulty.

THE SPECIAL ENVOY RETURNS FROM HIS TRIP TO MEXICO.

Mr. Sedgwick Spends Sunday in New York City and Leaves at Night for Washington—A Written Report to Secretary Bayard of the Cutting Investigation—The Special Envoy Refuses to Make Any Statement Regarding the Scandalous Stories Circulated About Him.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH.

NEW YORK, September 20.—The fact that Mr. Arthur G. Sedgwick has returned to the city from his trip to Mexico to investigate the Cutting affair, was not generally known among the gentleman's friends in New York yesterday. The last telegraphic accounts of the special envoy's whereabouts led every one to suppose that he was still at El Paso investigating the Mexican laws bearing upon the episode which, for a time, caused so much excitement along the Rio Grande. It was not supposed that he would so soon return home, and it is probable that no one except Secretary Bayard and Mrs. Sedgwick were expecting him for a week or two, at least. The Special Envoy did not stop in Washington, but came directly to New York, arriving on Saturday. He was met by Mrs. Sedgwick and driven at once to his house, No. 22 Washington place. Speaking of the incidents of his trip yesterday, Mr. Sedgwick said: "I do not feel called upon to make any further statements about the scandalous stories circulated during my absence. They reflect upon my personal character, it is true, but my friends—those who know me, and whose opinion I value—are convinced that they were lies."

"Will you say what foundation, if any, there was for the stories?"

"No; I will not discuss them. I have explained to Secretary Bayard and he is satisfied. There is nothing more for me to do. In the first place I am a Government employe still, and it is a question in my mind whether I would be justified in talking of any of the incidents of my journey. There were so many statements credited to me during my absence when I never opened my mouth, that I think the less I talk the better. Mr. Bayard knows all about it and I don't think it is a subject that the public care to discuss."

"Will you make a report upon the diplomatic results of your mission?"

A WRITTEN REPORT.

"I shall, of course, report to the Secretary of State. It will be in writing, and I shall endeavor to make my conclusions very plain. I cannot discuss this subject, either, because I am bound to keep my own counsel. When I give my report to Mr. Bayard he may make it public, or he may burn it. I know nothing as to his intentions, but I certainly will not talk about my investigation, and the chances are that I never will be in a position to talk about it."

"When will you report to Mr. Bayard?"

"I will start for Washington to-night and expect to see him to-morrow morning. I came here direct from El Paso."

Mr. Sedgwick took the midnight train from Jersey City, and was due in Washington at 8:15 o'clock this morning. To his friends at the clubs which he visited yesterday, Mr. Sedgwick spoke with less reservation. He said that the original account published in the New York Times was false in every particular; that it had been written by some malicious scribbler, and that he was easily prepared to prove its libelous character. The remarks of the special envoy lead his friends to believe that as soon as he has closed his business with the State Department he intends to return to New York and sue the Times and other papers which gave currency to the scandals. When questioned as to his intentions in this particular Mr. Sedgwick declined to answer. Among the documents which he took with him to Washington last night was the original manuscript of the "statement" prepared by prominent Mexicans, which emphatically and unmistakably denounces the assertions made as to his alleged indiscretions. This paper Mr. Sedgwick will submit to Secretary Bayard and it will be placed on file in the archives of the State Department as a complete refutation of Consul Pasch's report detailing the rumors which reached him in Mexico in reference to the Special Envoy's acts.

A NOVEL SCENE.

Corn Planter Indians Drawing a Brush Seine in the Allegheny.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH.

JAMESTOWN, N. Y., September 20.—Fully a thousand people from this city, Warren and neighboring places, went to Big Bend on the Allegheny River to witness the drawing of a brush seine by the Corn Planter Indians. This was the first time a brush seine had been drawn in the Allegheny River in ten years, and it becoming known that the fun was to take place, called out a great crowd of whites who stood by and witnessed the capture of about 2,000 pounds of bass, pike and pickerel by the sons of the forest. This method of fishing is novel and is prohibited by the laws of Pennsylvania, but the noble red man, like necessity, knows no law except that of supply and demand, and when he gets ready to fish the county jails have no terrors for him. When a seine is to be drawn a delegation of Indians select a location where the water is very deep and ending in a long, shallow riffle. Here they begin cutting brush, the butts of which are deftly woven together, leaving the bushy end loose. When this has reached a length sufficient to cross the stream one end is carried over and made fast to a tree. The loosely constructed drag is then interwoven with other branches, among which are fastened large stones, pieces of iron and junk until the lower side of the drag rests on the bottom of the stream. The seine is now completed and on the first bright day the main body of Indians arrives and the fun opens. They are divided into three squads. One of these, armed with spears or harpoons, is stationed on the riffle, and the other two are delegated to draw the seine. Soon after the drag begins moving the fish start down stream and the scene becomes an animated one indeed. Swarthy braves, dressed a la Newport, dash here and there in the shallow water, driving a spear through a ten-pound pickerel or a half pound bass with the same energy and skill, and all the time keeping up an unearthly yelling that resounds for miles through the forest. As the seine moves slowly down stream the excitement increases, and the Indians seem wild with delight as fish after fish, in endless variety is thrown flopping upon the banks to be taken care of by the old men. The sport at Big Bend lasted nearly two hours, and when the work was done they had captured a wagon-box full, the catch being estimated at 2,000 pounds.

SCHWATKA'S REPORT.

Progress of the Times' Exploring Expedition in Alaska.

NEW YORK, September 20.—In a letter to the Times dated Sitka, Alaska, September 10, Lieut. Schwatka says: The Times' Alaskan expedition was left at Icy Bay on July 17 by the United States steamer Pinta, and began the survey of the bay at once, with preparations for explorations in the St. Elias Alps on and about Mount St. Elias, which great mountain was afterwards ascended to a height above the snow level greater than was ever made before above that line by Alpine climbers. Icy Bay is a mere indentation on the Alaskan coast some fifty to sixty miles west of Yakutsk Bay, and would have no existence were it not for an immense glacier emanating from Mount St. Elias and jutting out in the Pacific Ocean far enough to make the western side of the bay. On Monday morning, July 19, the expedition for the exploration of the mountains got under way. The course at first lay up the eastern shore of the bay, to where the Indians said a large river came in at the head of a bay, thence up this river to where it came from under the ice of immense glaciers, or as far as the Yakutsk Indians ever go when hunting bears, mountain goats and the like, and hence to the base of Mount St. Elias. At 8:30 o'clock the party struck a small river, fifty or seventy-five yards wide, which had to be forded middle deep in ice water from the glacier. The next hour's walk was over a beautiful prairie, with heavy grass and wild pea vines, interspersed with strawberry patches and many pretty clumps of evergreen trees. This march brought the party to the great river which empties into the head of Icy Bay and which was struck about six or eight miles from its mouth. Its immense size was a great surprise as it was not supposed that such a river existed in that part of Alaska, where it was first struck. The stream is from a mile to a mile and a half wide.

LOADED WITH FRUIT

Eight hundred to 1,000 yards is water, the remainder being low mud, sand and gravel. The bay is covered at high water, when the stream must be a second Mississippi in appearance. Its western bank is a perpendicular wall of ice, part of the same great glacier which forms the western shore of Icy Bay. It was loaded with glacier mud from the Mount St. Elias Alps and its swift current, with waves about a foot high, was thought to be eight or ten miles an hour. It was surmised at the time, and afterward partially corroborated, that the great river is entirely too big in every way to be draining only the seaward slopes of the St. Elias Alps in the vicinity of the mountains from which it comes. It must head far beyond the range and break through them at Repartan Pass, and after draining the Travesse Pine districts, its muddy waters from the glaciers discolor all the waters of Icy Bay, and for many miles out to the sea. It was named Jones River, after George Jones of the New York Times, and geographically was one of the most important discoveries of the expedition. It is not thought to be rivaled by any Alaskan River emptying into the Pacific Ocean. The real ascent of Mount St. Elias began July 25. After several days' climbing the barometer showed an ascent altogether above the sea level of about 7,200 feet, nearly all of which was above snow level.

This gave to the Times party, it is believed, the Alpine record of the highest climb above the snow level ever made, certainly the highest on an almost wholly unknown mountain. The party returned to Icy Bay well satisfied with its record. Its geographical results were beyond its expectations. Three immense peaks from 12,000 to 8,000 feet were named after the President, "Cleveland Peak," the Secretary of the Navy, "Whitney Peak," and the Commander of the Pinta, "Nichols' Peak." Returning from Icy Bay to Yakutsk Bay a swamp was encountered and the party barely escaped. At Yakutsk three separate excursions were made and many new geographical features mapped.

The Desperate Attempts of a Printer to End His Life.

NEW YORK, September 20.—Thomas Rogers, aged 26 years, formerly a printer on the WORLD, returned to his boarding-house at No. 352 East Thirteenth street at 5 o'clock Saturday morning, after a night's spree, and at once set about ending his life. His first step was to soak a box of matches in a glass of water and drink the mixture. This was of no avail. He then took a picture nail from the wall and jabbed it twice into his left breast. Very little harm resulted, and he next smashed a wine bottle and sawed his throat with one of the fragments. While thus occupied his landlady discovered him, and had him promptly taken charge of by a policeman. He was sent to Bellevue Hospital. Rogers has not been working for three months, having, it is said, inherited a fortune of $30,000 from some relatives in England, which he was to receive in installments of $10,000 every ten years. He will recover.

THE BULGARIAN IMBROGLIO.

A Review of Prince Alexander's Downfall and the Cause.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH.

NEW YORK, September 20.—The Paris correspondent of the Times, under date of September 10, writes as follows: Although only of retrospective interest, as the comedy is ended, I send you a letter which shows how the Austrian public looks upon what my correspondent calls the "last act act of the drama, entitled: 'Bulgarian Independence.'"

VIENNA, September 7.—When the pitiless Don Sallust reminded Ruy Blas that he wore the dress of a lackey, Victor Hugo's hero replied: "But you have the soul of one." Alexander of Battenberg made no answer. He doffed his livery at the Czar's command. He bade farewell to his brilliant dreams and the curtain fell, the lamps were extinguished, or perhaps were removed from before the stage to kindle a conflagration. Alexander wished to prove to the world that he had not been driven away by his subjects. After passing triumphantly throughout his States, he abdicates; like your Cavaignac, he refuses to fall; he descends, and, resuming his functions in the German army, will some day be found in its first ranks in the coming war with Russia. It is evident that his position was untenable. For some years he has struggled against Russian intrigues. Thrice did conspirators endeavor to sequestrate him by night, and if these attempts did fail it was certain that others would follow, for Russia is obstinate and her agents might chance to remember how it was that England maneuvered to get rid of Abdul Aziz. Assuredly the Bulgarian officers who won promotion in the field are not disposed to yield their place to the Russians. But this can be arranged. They will be promised incorporation in the Russian army, and then on the first convenient pretext they will be classed as Nihilists and be transported to Siberia. It is possible, however, that they may resist stubbornly, arguing that a Russian expedition against Bulgaria would be the denial of all

THE PAN-SLAVIST THEORIES.

By it Alexander III., destroying his father's works, would become the oppressor, not the liberator of the Slavs, but the Czar has small esteem for the Bulgarians, and has not preserved a favorable remembrance of that war for their emancipation, in which he earned such scanty laurels. The Czar has been disappointed in Prince Battenberg, although at first sight his choice seemed excellent. Cousin of the Russian autocrat, allied by marriage with the Queen of England, Prince of the German Empire, a relative of the Polish hero, Bossak Hanke, who had fought so gallantly for France in the Franco-German war, he was entitled to the sympathies of all Europe, and yet precisely because he possessed the totality of European sympathy he was obnoxious to St. Petersburg. He had too many friends, and this was the cause of his downfall, which was inevitable, but might have been deferred if England, with her customary egotism, had not tried to make him her exclusive tool. England is the immediate promoter of this disaster of which British cowardice now strives to shirk the responsibility. The English press pretends that the humble act of submission addressed to the Czar by the Prince was inspired by the Emperor William with the hope that thus a reconciliation might be effected. It may be so and in diplomatic circles here it is admitted that the old sovereign would make any sacrifice likely to insure peace, but no one will admit that the affront offered is to Germany. We scarcely venture to doubt that a two years' truce was made between M. De Giers and Bismarck—that is to say, until the probable death of the Emperor. But his successor may not be so tole[illegible]nt, and it is not admissible, as the Austro-[illegible]man contract has been renewed for anot[illegible] seven years, that we can permit eithe[illegible] Bulgaria shall become a Russian provi[illegible] that a permanent insurrection shall [illegible]urated in Macedonia.

MUST HAVE BEER.

The Chicago Trades Assembly Settles a Very Important Question.

CHICAGO, September 20.—At yesterday's session of the Trades Assembly the Entertainment Committee made a report on the recent labor demonstration and picnic. The net balance from the sale of tickets, after paying all expenses, is something over $1,500. There were 397 kegs of beer sold, on which the profit to the assembly was $3.50 per keg. Deducting from this the amount claimed by the proprietor of the grove for three bars destroyed and liquors wasted by reason of the disturbances which occurred, there remains enough to place the net profits of the picnic at more than $2,500. After this the report of a committee appointed to revise the constitution was taken up. The delegates struck a snag in the second section in the shape of a prohibition plank. It was drawn by Mr. Temple, a Knight of Labor. The section declared that the assembly hereafter do not accept directly or indirectly any revenues from the sale of beer or other intoxicating liquors. Mr. Cook opposed the section, ridiculing the "prohibition movement" as he called it. He said this was a scheme of the Knights of Labor, and he did not propose to allow them to run the assembly. He was opposed to the amendment, and believed in allowing people to take a drink whenever they wanted to.

Mr. Crawford followed and opposed the idea of turning the assembly into a temperance society.

Mr. Stivers was the first to support the section. He declared that for years he had been afraid to take his wife and children to the labor picnics. He did not want them to witness disreputable men and women drinking and fighting, or piled up three or four deep on the ground dead drunk. "I do not advocate prohibition," he said, "but decency and respectability."

Mr. Owens, one of the best known labor leaders of Chicago, said that for six years he had kept away from the labor picnics because of their disreputable character, and he would continue to keep away until drink was abolished from them.

Another delegate arose and said it seemed a very strange time to adopt such a measure, when ten days before they had realized over $1,000 from the sale of beer.

President Rowan then spoke in favor of beer at picnics and the disputed section was laid on the table.

The constitution as revised, excepting the laid-over section, does not differ materially from the old one.

POPULAR "PAT."

ARRIVAL AND FIRST CONCERT OF GILMORE AND HIS BIG BAND.

The Exposition Crowded with Visitors—The Programme for To-Night—The Exhibits—Exposition Notes.

P. G. Gilmore,

the great conductor, and his military band arrived this morning on the Ohio & Mississippi train. The train was 1 hour and 45 minutes behind table time, which materially cut into the time for making preliminary arrangements. Mr. Gilmore, wife and daughter registered at the Lindell Hotel, where the great director was seen. "We are here," said he, "and glad of it. I have looked forward to this visit to St. Louis, because I have the liveliest remembrance of the hospitable treatment I received here last year. What do I think of the prospects?" said the leader. "They are grand. Last year I said that would be a great music hall, but then the stage had not been completed. Since then the Thomas Opera Company gave it a telling test, and I am informed that there is not a reverberation or defect. The hall is perfect. I have sixty-five performers with me, all in constant practice. Of the forty musicians I had here with me last year thirty-nine return. There are twenty-one soloists, and every man of them a thorough musician."

"What are the prospects for the Charity concert?"

"If everything goes on according to programme, and I know of no reason why it shouldn't, it will be the grandest military band ever heard under the sun. I have myself been in correspondence with fifty bands. Each has been furnished with these books of the music and complete instructions as to every detail. It was intended at first to have a grand rehearsal at Music Hall to-morrow morning, but owing to the immense amount of work they will have to do this week this has been dispensed with. The reports from leaders are very satisfactory. All members of bands have been furnished with the music and rehearsed it frequently. They are familiar with it now. There will be 2,000 pieces—not a family of bands, but one monster band, with all the piccolos here; cymbals there, drums there, etc. To-morrow additional instructions will be handed down the line of march giving each leader final instructions. I tell you it will be the grandest military band ever collected."

To-day the attendance at Exposition building is larger than it has been on any day since the opening this year except last Saturday. The special attraction on Saturday was the Children's Concert, which proved one of the most successful and gigantic entertainments ever given in this city. Attractive as was the concert, however, Gilmore proved as strong a card, and filled the great hall almost to overflowing.

* * *

This afternoon Gilmore opens his engagement at Music Hall with a fine programme. For this evening the following programme has been arranged:

Overture—"Tannhauser" ........ Wagner
Meditation Religieuse—"The Last Hope" .. Gottschalk
Grand Fantasia on "Blue Bells of Scotland" ........ Zanichelli
Airs de Ballet—"Le Prophete" ........ Meyerbeer
Serenade—"Love's Dream" ........ Moskowski
Grand Popular Selection—"Rose, Shamrock and Thistle," introducing the favorite songs, melodies and dances of England, Scotland and Ireland ........ Baeteus Interval of one hour.
Overture—"Alessandro Stradella" ........ Flotow
Concert Waltz—"On the Beautiful Blue Danube" ........ Strauss
Flute Solo—By Fred Lax—Themes from Gounod's "Faust," arranged by ........ Fred Lax
Grand Selection—"The Gems of Carmen" ........ Bizet
Reverie for saxophone by Lefebre; arranged by Prof. Norrito, a member of the band.
March—"German Students" ........ Strauss

The Exposition reopened this morning with every display complete. All the machinery in the basement is in motion to-day, and every exhibit in the naves and galleries was revealed to view this morning when the doors opened. The visiting Knights Templars who passed into the building to-day were amazed at the proportions of the exhibition and the costly character of the goods displayed.

The day attendance at the Exposition will continue to increase from this date. A large number of excursion trains will be run to this city from various points within a radius of 150 miles. These will generally arrive in the morning and depart in the evening. Thousands of residents of this city have postponed their visits until the arrival of Gilmore, and from now forward the visitor will have to take his chances in the sight-seeing throng.

Exposition Notes.

Gilmore to-night.

"Read the Dream Book."

The attendance is steadily increasing.

The Knights Templars visited the Exposition in great numbers to-day.

The photographic display of John A. Scholten is a strong rival of the art gallery. The work is exquisite and the faces the most prominent in St. Louis Society.

The Richardson Drug Company will present to each lady visitor to-night a bottle of Eastman's perfume of the Orient, "Aloha." This delightful odor is held in high estimation throughout the United States.

The mysteries of the manufacture of boots and shoes are laid bare in the eastern side of the basement, where Mr. John Meier, the well-known manufacturer of Fourth street and Lucas avenue, has a representation of his factory, with a large force of men and girls at work. This display is made at a heavier daily expense than any other at the Exposition.

A party of young ladies and gentlemen, consisting of Miss Genevia Boardman, Clara and Bertha Gerhardt and Miss Hattie Johnson and Mr. Jim Smizer, Ed Wilmot, Ed Gerhardt and Mr. Crow took in the Exposition Saturday, and all pronounced it a splendid success.

The bachelor has put on his dressing gown to make himself comfortable, notwithstanding the presence of the ladies. His regular reception evening is Friday, when he appears in full dress. Boyd & Co.'s exhibit and the bachelor continue to draw immense crowds to that end of the nave. A visitor must now await his turn to pay his respects to the lord of bachelors' hall.

The display of the Excelsior Manufacturing Company is one at which every lady checks her escort to spend a few moments in admiration. The display of stoves is invested with great interest for the head of every household. Some of the handsomest work ever turned from the mould is displayed by the Excelsior Manufacturing Company. A detail of polite attendants is always at the exhibit to give visitors any information they may desire.

The art gallery does not contain all the works of art on exhibition. The painting entitled "A Dream" is a "work" that deserves attention, and can be seen in the display of the Wrought Iron Range Company. It shows a negro asleep beside a furnace in full blast, his shovel leaning against him and a very small pile of coal just back of him. Through an air duct cold air from the North Pole blows in, is heated in the furnace and passes up through the hot-air pipes into the frigid zone. The zone must be quite warm, for the ice is melting and the polar bears wiping the perspiration from their heated brows, at the same time fanning themselves vigorously. The stars and stripes float bravely from the North Pole. A thermometer keeps the bears posted as to temperature.

THE only reliable cure for catarrh is Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy.

AN AMERICAN IN EUROPE.

Chauncey M. Depew Relates Interesting Incidents of His Trip in Europe.

NEW YORK, September 20.—Chauncey M. Depew arrived home from Europe yesterday. He was, of course, interviewed in the afternoon, and said he had seen little in the Continental papers about events here. The principal American topic for the European papers was the fight on the floor of Congress between Messrs. Laird and Cobb. Those two persons were held up as leading American statesmen, and there were columns in the papers going to show that their meeting was typical of American civilization.

"I was present in Paris during the festivities consequent upon M. Chevreul's attaining his one hundredth birthday, and the efforts of prominent men to kill him with kindness and his elastic efforts to resist proved the capacity of the French for any sort of government. There was a civic demonstration, and the poor old man was taken to the Grand Opera-house, which was jammed from roof to pit, and regaled with five acts from as many operas and a pantomime. Then, long after a man 100 years old ought to be in bed, the curtain was rung up and a huge bust of the old man was shown. It was on a pedestal about as large as that on Bedloe's Island. The Roman Senators in gowns saluted it and then Roman centurians and tribunes of the people in armor did the same thing. Then Marcus Tullius Cicero, in toga and with his hair banged, looking just as he does on busts, statues and coins, came out and delivered an oration. I suppose," added Mr. Depew thoughtfully, "because they thought he might be a familiar figure to the old man.

THEN ROMAN GIRLS BROUGHT FLOWERS and palm branches and threw them at the foot of the pedestal, and as the Roman girls had to appear in the ballet immediately afterward the impression on the French minds must have been that Roman girls dressed as ballet girls do nowadays. Finally, amid frantic enthusiasm, two ballet girls were swung from the wings in mid air and crowned the statue with laurel wreaths.

"The next day there was a banquet at which about 500 people sat down. The orators read their speeches and no one paid any attention to them. When any one finished there would be applause as though he were the last speaker. Then another man's friends would surround him and urge him to speak. At first he would refuse, like a young lady when asked to sing. Finally he would bashfully consent and all his friends would applaud. Then he would pull his speech from his pocket and begin. One gentleman mentioned the name of M. Thiers in his speech. The man sitting next him made some remark. The speaker stopped, put his manuscript in his pocket, handed his card to his interrupter, with the remark that a friend would call on him the next day, and then went on with his speech as though nothing had happened.

"The affair was, of course, full dress. During the evening the scullions and dishwashers entered the room in their aprons and shirt-sleeves. One gentleman sprang on his chair and shouted that it was an insult to the guests. A dozen others sprang up and stated that in the French Republic, with the motto. 'Liberty, Equality and Fraternity,' it was no insult for men to appear in the garb of the occupation they honored by following. At the end of the whole thing M. Chevreul said he thought he felt much better for the celebration.

A GREAT STRIDE TOWARDS REPUBLICANISM.

"Seriously, the French people have made a great stride towards republicanism as we understand it; republicanism is growing because in the country, in spite of clericalism, it is growing, where it heretofore has had little hold." Speaking of the financial situation abroad, Mr. Depew said: "There is an extreme depression with respect to European securities, but as regards American securities there is an almost complete restoration of confidence. In the event of war, such would be possible, involving the entire Continent, there would be an immense stoppage of production and an immense demand for supplies. The result could not fail to be beneficial to this country, and there would be such an absorption of our securities that there would not be enough of our real gilt-edged investments to meet one-tenth part of the demand.

"There has been a great change for the worse in the industrial condition of Europe since I was there four years ago. There the tendency of the wages of artisans is downward, while the tendency of the necessaries of life for the workingman is not downward. The spread of Socialism and anarchism, their threats and the occasional riots that occur are alarming the large and the small property-holders alike, and, excepting in France, there is a reaction toward absolutism—the people are willing to surrender part of their liberties for the sake of protection from a strong Government. The whole police and espionage system of Continental governments, including France, are united for the suppression of Socialists and anarchists, and the result is that the people are being driven in large numbers to this country. They are now forming a disproportionate part of our immigration. The population of the Continental nations is fast increasing, without any outlet in sight that affords sufficient inducements to seek relief in the direct immigration, for the labor troubles in America have been grossly exaggerated by the European press, and through that influence there is nothing resembling the old colonization spirit which looked hopefully to the United States."

"I am satisfied from what I saw and heard of the Socialist agitation and its influence in creating a tendency toward absolutism that the cause of liberty and Democracy in Europe has received the greatest set-back it has experienced in twenty-five years. There has been a great impetus to the military spirit in Germany since the Franco-Prussian war, encouraged by the fear of revenge of France on the one hand, the fear of fulfillment of Napoleon's prophesy that Europe would eventually be either Republican or Cossack. And to-day the Cossack holds the most dangerous power he ever wielded. Beneath the fear of the social revolution on the one hand and the military needs to provide defense against the Cossack, the industries of Central Europe are depressed and full of alarm to a terrible degree.

WHAT IT COST.

MR. GLOVER EXPLAINS THE HIGH ASSESSMENT OF HIS COMMITTEE.

A Detailed Statement of the Primary Expenses—Mr. Seth Cobb Comes Out for Glover—The Republican Congressional Committee Snubs the City Central Committee—The Silk Stockings Laid Out—Meetings To-Night—Gossip.

In the course of a conversation with a POST-DISPATCH reporter this morning Mr. John M. Glover said: "I have been annoyed considerably of late by inquiries as to the precise nature of the facts damaging to the character of Mr. Overall, which induced him to withdraw from the race for Congress; also to know whether it was true that I forced Mr. Francis to force Mr. Overall off the track by threatening to show that he (Francis) was not elected. Now if one of these stories is more infamously false than the other, I should like to know which is which. I should like to embalm the author for the admiration of future generations of liars. I cannot refrain from saying that if Mr. Overall had admitted frankly, what was a self-evident fact, that he withdrew because the prospects of success did not justify his continuance in the race, nobody would have been put to the pains of inventing sinister and fictitious explanations of the act."

"It has been reported, Mr. Glover, that your committee has placed the congressional assessment in the Ninth District at an unnecessarily high figure for the purpose of frightening off impecunious candidates."

"Yes," said Mr. Glover, "the Globe-Democrat does a good deal of beautiful theorizing as to the cost of Democratic primaries in the Ninth District, and it is almost too cruel to deprive the Gould organ, which would like to see me retired along with the St. Louis bridge bill, of its only 'issue' in this campaign. Net figures are eloquent, and the theory that the primaries only cost $275 looks very silly in the light of the following statement of amount expended at the primary election in the Ninth Congressional District, Monday, September 6, 1886: Poll-books, $198; hall rent for convention, $20; judges and clerks in Second Ward, $25; Twenty-sixth Ward, $40; Twenty-seventh Ward, $20; Fifteenth Ward, $25; Tenth Ward, $25; Eighteenth Ward, $20; Thirteenth Ward, $20; Nineteenth Ward, $20; Seventeenth Ward, $23; total amount, $436.

"This statement was handed over to me by Chairman McGrath of the Congressional Committee, together with a check for $764, the unexpended balance of the sum paid by me. Add $25 for the First Ward and $25 for the Third Ward and the total is $486. This was with only one polling place in each ward. Had there been two candidates there would have necessarily been two polling places in each ward and three in some. Excluding the cost of poll-books, this would have doubled the bill in all the items of expenditure in McGrath's statement except the first and made the total about $800, with only one set of judges and clerks. But in that case the other candidate was entitled to a separate set of judges and clerks, which would require adding another $300 to the bill, making $1,100. This does not include the cost of advertising the primaries and polling-places in the POST-DISPATCH, Republican, Globe-Democrat, Anzeiger and Amerika and the Sunday Sayings, which the committee ordered. Mr. Butler, the secretary, with the intent to throw the primaries into confusion, destroyed the order to make the publication so far as the English papers were concerned, and this piece of treachery was not discovered until too late. That the cost of these publications would have swelled the total beyond $1,200 there is not the least doubt, and had there been three candidates the amount would have been totally insufficient. To say, then, that the figure fixed by the committee was exorbitant as a rough estimate is obviously ridiculous."

The Right Sort.

The report that a large number of Democrats, residents of the Ninth District, will not support Hon. J. M. Glover, is denied by well informed politicians. Mr. Seth Cobb, a representative Democrat and prominent merchant on 'Change, discussing the subject with a POST-DISPATCH reporter, said: "Such is not the case to my knowledge and certainly should not be. Mr. Glover deserves and should receive the unanimous support of his party. He has received the nomination and Democrats should support him. It has been known for two years that Mr. Glover would be a candidate for re-election. Why did these soreheads not go to the primaries and defeat him, if he is so unworthy—and not bolt the party after the nomination has been made. It is nonsense to claim that Mr. Glover is the bummer candidate—he is the candidate of the Democratic party and should have its hearty support. If he is stronger than the opposition to him all should acquiesce in his candidacy. If he is not, and his opponents permitted him to be nominated without making an effort to defeat him, it is to their discredit, not his. The men whose complaints are loudest and who say the bummers are running the city, and the party being disgraced, are men who sit back in their cushioned chairs and never show their faces at a primary. If anything goes wrong they are the first to complain, but they permit these things without an effort to prevent them.

"It is foolish for us to say there are more bad than good men in either party, and if we choose to be controlled by the former we are responsible for imperfect legislation. Mr. Glover is talented and a hard worker. The Merchants' Exchange has made no demand on him that he has not responded to promptly and zealously, and I believe he has done his utmost to promote our interests. I know nothing of his personal quarrels with party leaders. They were certainly unfortunate, but in my opinion not of sufficient magnitude to justify Democrats in bolting the ticket.

"I do not believe in these independent movements, and continued carping at nominees. That should be done before, or at the primaries. The result should be accepted by all. If a disappointed candidate or faction turns against the successful aspirant, we might as well abandon party affiliation and have a "go as you please" party.

"If a nominee was so very objectionable that I could not support him I would quietly stay away from the polls, or deposit my ballot for some good man, but this strife, dissension and bickering after nominations have been made is both unwise and undemocratic. I shall support Mr. Glover and hope to see him triumphantly returned to Congress."

The Democratic Committee.

The Democratic City Central Committee will meet at 8 o'clock this evening at Sixth and Chestnut streets. Committeeman Tom Wand informed a POST-DISPATCH reporter this morning that it was not at all probable that the committee would consider the question of fixing the date of the Democratic City Convention at this early day and that in his opinion it would be several weeks yet before that matter would be disposed of. The principal business to be transacted to-night will be of a financial nature and the committee will probably sit in executive session.

Snubbed.

As predicted by the POST-DISPATCH, the Ninth District Republican Committee snubbed the Republican City Central Committee in a marked manner by completely ignoring the request of the latter body to hold the Ninth District primaries and convention on the days set for the city, Senatorial, Representative, and the Eighth and Tenth Congressional elections and conventions. The Foerstel-Smith combination did exactly the opposite to what was expected of them by setting the convention for October 12, nearly two weeks later than the "early convention" demanded by the blue-ribbon crowd. First the Grier-Bulkely Republicans resorted to the expedient of a begging petition in order to bring about a meeting of the Congressional committee. This received little attention and had no effect in influencing the committee. Then the Silk Stocking City Committee attempted to bring about unity of action in all of the City and Congressional Committees and again they were given scant consideration. Yet the helpless Silk-Stockings claim that harmony prevails in the party.

Gossip.

The Progressive Committee of the United Labor Party met yesterday and passed a resolution requesting the Trades' Unions and Labor Assemblies to elect delegates to the October convention.

Secretary of State M. K. McGrath, after a careful canvass of the situation, expresses the opinion that Glover will be re-elected by an increased majority.
